Editors, being what they are, have few friends. A lot of acquaintances but few friends.

Because of this, about the only visitors to our house are:

1. Water softener salesmen.
2. Encyclopedia salesmen.
3. Termite treatment salesmen.
4. Cemetery lot salesmen.
5. Men armed with chain saws and who want to cut the tops out of our trees.
6. Baptists making surveys and who, invariably, want to know if I've been baptized.
7. Boy Scouts selling state donuts.

Of all these people, the Boy Scouts are the most disturbing, not because the donuts they unload on me are hard enough to crack walnuts but because the young are easily disillusioned and they must be a disillusioned group.

Here are a bunch of lads who have answered Scouting's clarion call to adventure only to find themselves tramping door-to-door, ringing doorbells, a box of Krispy Kremes under each arm, sharing a common territory and mission with other drummers.

Here are kids who have signed up, taken the oath, memorized the creed, tied knots, passed tests, all the while looking forward to hikes through the woods, camping trips and cookouts only to find their horizons blotted out by a suburban ranch homes and hausfraus.

I can't help but believe that Scouting has fallen on evil days and in an effort to come up with some proof I wrote National Boy Scout headquarters and ask for some comparative figures to show whether there are more or fewer Scouts now than some years ago.

I've yet to get an answer. When I was a Scout (I got stuck at Second Class because I couldn't swim the required distance for First Class) we had a camporee and we used to swing along through the fields, knapsacks on our backs and sheath knives flopping on our hips and if anyone had suggested we hit the pavement to sell donuts the troop would have broken up in minutes.

(I understand it's possible now to get merit badges for salesmanship and public relations, an indication that not too far off Scouts will be helping little old politicians across the streets.)

Not long ago a group of Scouts used to row a boat from Norfolk to Elizabeth City, N. C. What an adventure. What a thrill for those Scouts to totter wearily home, blisters on their hands, to exclaim to their fathers: "Hey, Dad, guess what? We rowed a boat all the way to Elizabeth City."

Contrast that with the Scout who also totters wearily home after a day on the asphalt to exclaim: "Hey, Dad, I sold 27 boxes of donuts today."

No longer do the Scouts row boats to Elizabeth City and the last ones I saw camping had pitched their tents a few feet from the troop but in the midst of a heavily-built up area.

If the troops need money let them raise it by selling shrunken heads, crossbows, rattlesnake skins -- anything with adventure in it. But donuts? Never. There's no adventure in donuts.

Tourist Attraction Marineland A Possibility for Beach

MARINELAND, LIKE THE ONE IN THE DRAWING ABOVE, FEATURES EDUCATED PORPOISES.

Marineland, the $9,000,000 tourist complex at Potts Neck, Virginia Beach, Florida, is interested in putting a similar attraction in Virginia Beach, the Virginia Beach Sun has learned.

A representative of Marineland was in Virginia Beach the latter part of December looking over a possible site.

"It would involve a $250,000 land deal," said a local real estate man. "I hope to be able to put it together."

The site under consideration fronts 800 feet on the ocean and consists of two parcels. Both property owners would have to agree to sell before the deal goes through.

The oceanfront site is necessary since salt water is pumped from the ocean to the tanks where marine life is displayed.

The attraction at Virginia Beach would include three tanks for undersea life and a motel and restaurant.

Marineland expects to start construction this spring if negotiations are concluded satisfactorily.

"They like the land," said the real estate man. "Now it's a matter of getting together with the sellers."

The attraction would be open the seven warmer months of the year. It would also include facilities for the study of marine life off the coast of Virginia. "I don't know much about fish," said the realtor, "but the way they talk they are next to human."

Marineland of Florida is the world's original oceanarium. It opened about 25 years ago, featuring educated porpoises. The giant tanks contain almost a million gallons of sea water. There are six performances each day and visitors watch the sea life and divers through 300 glass windows.

The tourist complex contains a lodge, a restaurant, a snack shop, a lounge, picnic area, gift shop, fishing pier, yacht dock and film shop.

Ervin Takes Exception

GGA President Issues Statement

The following statement was received by the Virginia Beach Sun from Reid Ervin, president of the Good Government Association and is printed here in its entirety.

In its issue of December 29, 1966, the Virginia Beach Sun printed a front page article which credited me with statements and direct quotations which are not only inaccurate but also erroneous and misleading. This article attributes its information to what is referred to as a "reliable source" and proceeds to state in very positive language that I, as president of the Good Government Association, in effect said the following:

1. That the Good Government Association will not publicly endorse or support any candidates for public office in the 1967 election.

2. That "We will not endorse Mr. Etheridge, Mr. Middleton or any other candidates".

The "reliable source" mentioned in the article is Mr. James P. Coates, who is the General Manager of the Virginia Beach Sun. What I said to Mr. Coates is exactly what I have said publicly to various individuals and also to the general membership of our association in open meetings attended by the press. In answer to specific questions raised by Mr. Coates in an informal conversation I stated that our association had not at that time endorsed any of the announced candidates for the 1967 election and contrary to a statement made in the Norfolk Ledger Dispatch we had not assured Mr. Etheridge of our support.

I stated further that we were a non-partisan association and that it was entirely possible that no candidates would be endorsed, however, this decision would not be made by the president but by a vote of the general membership of the association after the names of all the candidates were known.

It is appropriate to mention that for our association to sit idly by and ignore such an important election would be inconsistent with our stated policy. Our political action committee has already been instructed by the membership to examine the qualifications of all candidates and to bring in their recommendations. Then and only then will the membership determine its future course on individual candidates.

With further reference to the article I would like to make the following statements:

1. None of the announced candidates has requested the support of this association.
2. The president of this association appoints all Committees. I am the only president who has officially served to date and I have not offered any committee assignments to Mr. V. A. Etheridge.

3. There has been no fight or even a mild disagreement within this association over the question of partisan Vs. non-partisan position.

4. The president of this association is also chairman of the public relations committee. It is the policy of this committee to issue all press releases in writing and signed. Information obtained in any other manner does not represent the official position of this association.

5. In order to prevent any misunderstanding of my personal relationship with Mr. Etheridge I wish to state that I have offered him my full and unqualified support in the upcoming elections.

Marlins Head For Norview

After a holiday rest, the Marlin basketball team of Bayside travel to the Norview High School gym this Friday night to play the Norview Pilots in an Eastern District Group 1-A basketball game. The Marlins have their work cut out for them in an attempt to shoot down the Pilots, holders of an impressive 19-4 record from last season. Bayside will again turn to the foursome of 6-2 Ray Burton (a constant high-scoring), 6-3 Bruce Gregory, 6-1 Ray Emerson, and 6-0 Pochie Williams (tops in BHS's backcourt). The Marlins depend on a control-type of game, using the height of the Fearsome Foursome, as well as 6-0 Jerry Luzler, another up-and-coming Marlin.

Norview was hurt at the start of the season by the loss of several key players from last season. They have depended on the services of returning lettermen Pat Berry (6-7) and Bob Shelyin (6-3) to hold the team together, along with some newcomers. Guard Bob McMichael (5-11) has been touted by Pilot coach Jim Brown as "one of the best shooting guards in the district". Mark Mustin, a former J-Vet, will also star in the backcourt, and 6-2 Dickie Trower will join Shelyin at forward.

THE ANCIENT AND PRIMITIVE CUSTOM OF PIERCING THE EAR LOBES IS GROWING INCREASINGLY POPULAR IN VIRGINIA BEACH. FOR HOW TO PIERCE EARS SEE PAGE TWO

Teen-Agers Puncture Ear Lobes for Fashion's Sake

BY JANE RICHARDSON
Alcohol, ice, sterilized needles, gauze....
A major surgical operation, perhaps?

Nope, it's just another teenage girls preparing to pierce her ears in the interest of fashion.

Punching holes in the earlobes for earrings is an old custom but comparatively recently the fad mushroomed until all ages are going under the needle. (One five-year old girl in King's Grant had her ears pierced. Her mother couldn't quite get up enough courage to have hers done.)

Some girls subscribe to the do-it-yourself method. Others have a friend perform the operation. And a device is on sale which, when attached to the earlobes, grinds its way through the flesh as you sleep.

Pierced ears date back to the early cave dwellers of the Stone Age. Shells, bones, and stones were used by the first wearers. Pierced earrings have been worn for centuries in Africa by both the men and women of the various tribes. Displayed as decorations and in religious ceremonies, they are supposed to ward off evil spirits.

Pierced ears are quite common in both Europe and Asia. Young girls' ears are pierced while still in their early childhood. The children wear them everyday as a part of their dress. Turkish and Cossack men often had one ear pierced. Their large gold circular earrings indicated their maturity or high position.

Pierced earrings became popular in the U.S. during the days of the "Roaring Twenties," like pierced ears?" 66% answered that they did, 34% of the girls did not like them. Thirty-four per cent had pierced ears.

The large amount of European immigrants were supposed to have influenced this rise in popularity. Soon this style spread rapidly along the eastern and western coasts of America. Women from all backgrounds began to have their ears pierced. This century-old trend was revived once again in the Tidewater Area last year. The modern set-today's "go-generation" were the culprits this time. Many girls have experimented in the different ways of piercing their own ears. The fee to have a doctor do it was too costly in many cases. Recently a survey on pierced ears was taken at Frank W. Cox High School. Girls from fourteen to eighteen filled in their various answers on the questionnaire.

To the question of "Do you like pierced ears?" 66% answered that they did, 34% of the girls did not like them. Thirty-four per cent had pierced ears.

Over 90% had a friend or member of their family do it for them. The few that went to a doctor paid anywhere from five to ten dollars to have their ears pierced. In most cases, a sterilized needle was used by the friend for the actual piercing, only after the ear had been numbed by ice. The next step is to soak the earrings in alcohol and insert them immediately. The earrings should not be changed for about three weeks. This will help the healing process. Later, they can be changed as often as one pleases.

Only 10% of the girls reported that the procedure was painful, whereas 25% reported after-effects such as infection. For those who are thinking of piercing their ears, over 90% of the girls who had their ears pierced said that they would do it over again.

Comments were wide and varied. Cathy Holland said "At least you can't lose your earrings," and Pam Husk added "If you can afford it - go ahead." Many girls were indifferent stating that the pierced earrings looked good on some people, bad on others. Brenda Clarke clearly indicated her dislike by writing "It is a known fact that pierced ears date back to pagan tradition."

"Make sure the whole earring is 14K gold," exclaimed Jane McFarland. "Mis McFarland was evidently one of the 25% with after effects!" Sharon Vanderploeg enthusiastically stated "If your boyfriend doesn't mind...it's great!"

The male sex answered only one question. Surprisingly enough, over 95% of those questioned gave an emphatic "No!" when asked if they liked pierced ears for girls. Many did not like the various styles. The earrings range anywhere from disco Christmas trees, and small elephants to tiny jeweled flowers.

A PIERCED EARS KIT FOR DO-IT-YOURSELFERS CONSISTS OF ICE CUBES FOR NUMBING THE LOBES, ALCOHOL FOR STERILIZING, A NEEDLE FOR PUNCHING THE HOLES AND GAUZE FOR WIPING BLOOD, IF ANY, AWAY.

Cox Grapplers Face PA Squad

The Frank W. Cox wrestling team faces a tough Princess Anne squad on Wednesday, January 11. In a match of undefeated rivals, the city championship could well be decided. The match will start at 8:00 p.m. in the Bayside High School gym.

Cox, an A division team stood 3-0 at the holiday break. Princess Anne, in the B division, has earned four victories this year. Two divisions - A and B - make up the Eastern District wrestling roster. The various teams are evenly divided according to their previous records. Those schools with the better wrestling records are placed in the A division. The other teams are then placed in the B division. Cox, second in the district and third in the state last year, is highly rated with a 12-1 record from last year.

Three Cox grapplers remain undefeated after matches against Bayside, Wilson and Oscar Smith. Mike Murphy, Chip Morgan, and Bruce Whitaker have gone without a loss thus far. All three wrestle in the upper weight classes. Whitaker, senior captain of the team at 154 lbs. was rated third in the district at the beginning of the year. He is rapidly showing promise as a possible state contender. Cox downed Oscar Smith 23-16 in their last match. The Falcons were unable to score any pins, as all their points came on decisions. The seven Cox wrestlers who were victorious include Bill Coleman, Gary Beaton, Alex Newton, Pete LeChaire, Bruce Whitaker, Jerry West, and Chip Morgan. Mike Murphy scored two points for the Falcons after his draw match.

A bill was introduced recently in the Fiji legislature to amend the Agricultural Produce Ordinance, by replacing both "native" and "non-native" by the words "Fijian" and "non-Fijian." The expression "native" is disliked, according to the Government.

AH, ANYTHING FOR VANITY. OPERATION COMPLETED AND EARS HEALED, THIS YOUNG LADY INSERTS HER EARRINGS THROUGH THE HOLE LEFT BY THE NEEDLE AND IS READY TO BE ADMIRRED.

WE ARE PROUD TO ANNOUNCE!

GENE BATTEN is now associated with us in our meat department.

In Behalf of Justice

How far should editorial comment extend?

We are strong believers in freedom of the press as long as the press presents news in a fair and just manner.

However, we do not think that James J. Kilpatrick, editor of the Richmond News-Leader, in his editorial attack on Judge A. M. Aiken for his recent court decisions concerning the 1963 Danville race riots was either fair or just.

It is the duty of newspapers not only to keep citizens informed of the news, but to bring their attention to injustice and corruption in public office.

The Danville Bar Association unanimously adopted a resolution in December criticizing Mr. Kilpatrick and supporting Judge Aiken.

We agree with the Bar Association that Mr. Kilpatrick should have been completely certain of his facts before editorially attacking a respected member of our judicial system.

The riots took place.

The rioters broke laws.

They were tried and sentenced.

Mr. Kilpatrick held as unconstitutional an injunction forbidding picketing. This same injunction was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court even though the appellants reprinted in their appeal brief an earlier editorial of Mr. Kilpatrick.

Mr. Kilpatrick is an editor. He is neither a lawyer nor a judge.

His editorial did not aid the administration of justice, but in effect impeded it by creating in the minds of the public a distrust for the judiciary and courts of the Commonwealth.

Old Killers Still at Large

The American Medical Association touted up medical progress in 1966 and concluded it was a year of "encouraging developments."

Among the items the AMA listed were the first successful implantation of an artificial heart, the development of a drug which may improve memory, and a "dignified" study of human sexual response, and the improvement of artificial limbs which get their motive power from the electric potential of the muscle, eliminating the need for straps and springs.

The AMA went on to name a mumps vaccine which is nearly 100 per cent effective.

"We are not yet at the end of the road to perfect health," said the AMA in the understatement of the year.

Then, in what must have been a most painful admission, the AMA stated that doctors are still losing battles to the old killers—heart disease, stroke and cancer.

When finally the scientists and physicians are able to wipe out these three adversaries, then the AMA will really have something to crow about.

Most Unfortunate

Nothing will anger, or sicken, certain passages in the book a writer more than to have and the editing done by her bits of his prose eliminated attorneys will all be for naught, or rearranged.

Already a German publishing house has announced it will print William Manchester's book about the death of the late President Kennedy apparently contributed to Manchester's depression and hospitalization.

The dustup over the book is Mrs. Kennedy's objections to the unpurgated version. And very shortly we can expect the complete book to be circulated in the United States.

Dear Editor,

At the closing of another year, many of our people find themselves in a pensive mood. Many are counting their blessings and offering to their God their sincere thanks.

Those of us who have kept well are inclined to think sympathetically of those less fortunate. Particularly those who have been suffering diverse illnesses and injuries. In this vein of thinking we are reminded of our service agencies that are always quick to answer the calls from the homes of our sick and injured.

We frequently speak of our nurses as "The Angels of Mercy", and truly they are well named. Let us never forget the outstanding service, so faithfully and cheerfully rendered, by our most dedicated "Virginia Beach Rescue Squad."

Knowing something of the dedication of this marvelous group of Community Servants, I never cease admiring their great contribution to our community life.

This group of dedicated servants supply a comforting security that would be hard to come by without them. Let us all rally to their support as they so faithfully discharge their highly important duties.

quest and request

Q. I heard on the radio that you would answer any question. Why does the Virginia Beach School Board furnish a school bus for the driver to do her shopping?

A Negro driver used a bus to shop at the Plaza and a white driver uses one to shop on 31st St.

Please answer in your paper. Thank you.

Mrs. J.E. Va. Beach

A. You are absolutely correct. We TRY to answer all questions, even loaded ones. I am certain you are aware that the Virginia Beach School Board does not furnish school buses to its drivers to do any shopping, and feel that your question may be slightly facetious.

I contacted M.P. Strickler, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, who is also in charge of transportation, and read your letter to him.

"We definitely have instructed all of our drivers not to stop for any shopping on the way to or from their school bus assignments," he said.

He added that he cannot take any action on infractions of this hard and fast rule unless names or school bus numbers are reported to him and the accuser can supply substantiating evidence.

"At this time, we have no knowledge of anyone breaking the rule, but we would appreciate anyone who does have first hand knowledge of an offender, reporting it to us," he said.

What Is So Rare As A Winter's Day at Sandbridge

Take a bitter cold and windy holiday, mix with people who've been confined to their homes for several days and presto you've got a (1) cook out with Pat and Ted Hood and their children, Tony and Sherri, and Rick Cassano and children, Lisa, Mark and Debbie; a (2) shoot out with John Parron, Wallace Carter, Mike Carter, James Parron and Bill Parron as they try out a rifle and shotgun; and a (3) sing out with Charles Versa and his guitar accompanying a group from Chesapeake and elsewhere. All the photographs made on the beach just south of Sandbridge.

Politics Only One Part of 1966 Here

(STORY BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR. ILLUSTRATIONS BY MEREDITH SEMBLER)

Politics was the name of the game in 1966, and all indications are that the name of the game will not be changed in 1967.

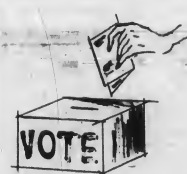

Before the year was barely 100 hours old, 12 men had filed for the April Democratic primary election for Virginia Beach City Council.

The Organization swept the field in April and in the 2-man (and women) race in June.

Less than a week after the primary, the U. S. District Court ruled in favor of the reapportionment of city Council, under which the primary candidates were running. But two weeks before the general election in June the District Appeals Court threw it out. The city appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court, and is still waiting to hear if the case will be reviewed.

Politics merely coasted with the Council election, but with the July Democratic Senatorial Primary, things really got into high gear.

Challenger William B. Spong, Jr. dumped veteran legislator A. Willis Robertson in one race and Harry F. Byrd, Jr. won, but not too easily over his challenger, Armistead L. Boothe.

Boothe and Spong won in Virginia Beach. The Organization had backed Byrd and Robertson.

Then in the November general election the Organization backed Spong and Byrd. They won, (in Virginia Beach too.)

In the same election in November Virginia Beach voters okayed a $7 million bond issue for schools, a municipal complex, recreation, a library, roads and other projects.

Even before election day November 8, one man had already announced he would run against the incumbent Clerk of Circuit Court in the July 1967 election.

Others have followed suit and at year's end nearly all races are set in the primary. It should prove to be a knock-down, drag-'em-out battle, and already it's shaping up as a major skirmish between the Organization and the challengers.

Politics never ends in Virginia Beach, whether it's '66 or '67, there is little difference.

In January the contract was awarded for the second span of the Lesmer Bridge over Lynnhaven Inlet. It was opened to traffic early this month.

Two separate snows in three days dumped 14.2 inches of snow on Virginia Beach the end of January. The freeze that followed added to the woes.

Miller and Rhoads opened in March. Pembroke Mall opened a few weeks later and Sears opened in July, completing the mammoth shopping center on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Senator Byrd and Admiral Hogle were the marshals of the Armed Forces Day parade in May.

Governor Godwin reviewed his troops of the National Guard in June.

The July Fourth weekend and the entire summer tourist season were called the best ever on record.

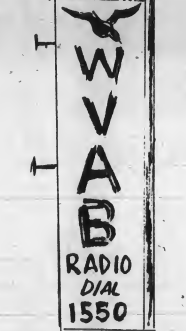

Miss Virginia Beach, Kathy Carson, placed second in the Miss Virginia contest in Roanoke in July. Lynn Fragley was chosen the new Miss Virginia Beach in August.

Ending a year-long controversy, the School Board finally settled it in August. The name of the new school was definitely to be First Colonial High School. It opened in September without plumbing facilities working. School days were short.

City Council passed a resolution endorsing a new State Park south of Sandbridge in August also, and a successful two-day surfing carnival was held.

early in October, WVAB, Virginia Beach's own radio station took to the air, and on November 17, the new VIRGINIA BEACH SUN hit the streets. In October, Virginia Beach was recognized as the third largest city in population in Virginia.

In March, the city adopted the old lighthouse at Fort Story as its new symbol, but it still smells bad.

In May David Johnstone and John Hoare set out to row the Atlantic from Virginia Beach to England. They hoped to set a new record, but never made it. They have been declared "lost".

A Virginia Beach teacher was named "Virginia's Teacher of the Year". Mrs. Donald Rhodes of King's Grant Elementary received the honor in December.

The First National Bank branch at Pembroke was robbed in August. Four suspects were arrested after the manager and clerk were beaten.

Another bank was robbed at Davis Corner in September. A Virginia Beach policeman got in the chase and was shot at. The shot missed.

The Greater Tidewater Fair got off to a soggy start in October but was termed a success.

One of the saddest events of the year occurred in January. A 14-year-old newspaper boy was struck and killed while riding his bicycle on his rounds in Aragona Village. His killer remains at large.

The traffic is still heavy on Virginia Beach Boulevard. The surfers say they still don't have enough area. And Atlantic Ocean continues to pound away, much to the chagrin of the Erosion Commission.

On December 20, Virginia Beach had a thunderstorm, with lightning, some snow, heavy rains, wind, etc.

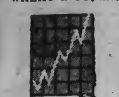

Could be an omen for 1967. Happy New Year, anyway.

Taxes Due on Home Wages

Do you have a household employee? If you do, you may be required to file Form 942, Employer's Quarterly Tax Return for Household Employees according to James P. Boyle, district director of Internal Revenue for Virginia.

Social Security taxes are due when $40 or more in cash wages is paid to any employee in a calendar quarter for services of a household nature, Boyle said. In general, this includes services performed by cooks, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, cleaning women, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, groomers, and chauffeurs of automobiles for family use.

No taxes are due on amounts paid to persons who are not your employee, Boyle said. Carpenters, painters, plumbers, and repairmen or those who work for you as independent contractors are not considered to be employees.

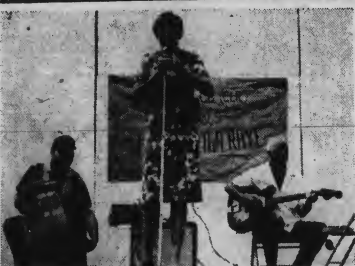

The employer tax and the employee tax are each 4.4 percent or a total of 8.8 percent of total cash wages of $50 or more paid during a calendar quarter during 1967. If the employer prefers, it is permissible for him to pay the full 8.8 percent.

full 8.8 percent, Boyle said. The District Director pointed out the tax applies only to the first $6,000 of taxable cash wages paid to an employee in

Form 942 returns together with payment of the tax covering the three months of October, November and December are due on or before January 31, 1967.

Circular H, Household Employer's Social Security Tax Guide, which furnishes more detailed information on this subject, may be obtained by dropping a post card to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 400 North 8th Street, Richmond, Va. 23240.

Results of the 1966 Fall Feeder Cattle Sales are in and a very successful season it was for Virginia cattle producers, says K. C. Williamson, beef cattle specialist at Virginia Tech.

Prices were higher on all kinds of cattle, as most buyers were optimistic about prices for finished cattle in 1967. Steer calves averaged $29.37 per hundredweight, exactly $2 higher than last fall.

Heifers showed even greater improvement, averaging $24.15 per hundred, up $2.50 over last year, Williamson says. "This still left a spread of $5.25 per hundred between steers and heifers, which is large compared with the standards of the rest of the nation. Most of the heifers went to feedlots with a small number bought for replacement purposes."

Surprisingly enough, steer calves were slightly heavier this fall, averaging 465 pounds per head compared with 461 pounds for a year earlier. Generally, there was more widespread drought over Virginia this past summer than a year earlier. Heifer calves averaged the same weight as last year, 428 pounds each.

An average calf in Virginia this past fall weighed 451 pounds, sold for $26.75 per hundredweight and brought $120.65 per head. This price is the highest received for calves since 1962. Calves sold through sales the past five years have averaged about $16 per head. Fancy and choice steer calves sold for $30.40 per hundred. Steers grading good went for $29.55 and the medium grade calves sold for $27.50. The spread in prices between the grades of heifers was a little less with fancy and choice heifers averaging $24.90, good $24.25, and mediums $22.80. Just under 35,000 calves were sold through these graded sales, down about four percent from 1965 sales, says Williamson.

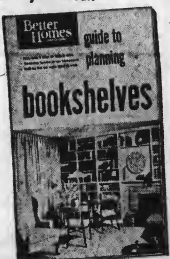

Yearling feeder cattle were also up in price and there was a 30 percent increase in volume, with 21,500 head moving through graded sales. Yearling steers averaged $24.75 per hundred, up about $1.25 over last fall.

The yearling steers were the heaviest in four years, averaging 722 pounds. There have been few yearling heifers sold through these sales, but the 305 head sold this fall averaged $22 per hundred with an average weight of 575 pounds. The specialist says, "Because of dry weather and short corn crops in Pennsylvania and Maryland, more yearling cattle moved into the Corn Belt area of the Midwest than in an previous year. There was also a good demand from some of the larger feeders from North and South Carolina."

Virginia Beach 1967: Face of Progress

The new year finds Virginia Beach's growth continuing with the noise of hammer and saw mingling with the roar of concrete trucks and earth movers. Here on this page are photographs representative of public and private work reflecting the progress of the city.

A new home goes up in the Brookwood section of the city.

Workmen puddle concrete atop a support for the high level bridge at Rudee Inlet.

General Booth Boulevard speeds traffic from Virginia Beach Borough to the Civic Center. ▼

A new King's Department store nears completion.

And a new motel and restaurant are planned.

A new building goes up on the beachfront just north of the Steel Pier.

An elementary school will sprout from this muddy field in Princess Anne Plaza.

Roof trusses are unloaded for a new apartment projected at Birdneck Road and Laskin Road.

A sign heralds the advent of a new shopping center.

...the Virginia Beach Cotillion Christmas dance...Thursday night in the Cavalier, Rain, rain everywhere...but the Cotillion crowd, unlike their elders, very, very drip dry. Not a droopy hair-do in the place...After all, what can a little rain do to Beacherions?

The Rondells played...never were in better form...neither were the dancers. They danced their shoes off, literally. If we didn't know better, we'd assume they'd been saving their strength for weeks.

A fashion happening, for sure...Most wore long dresses, with a sprinkling of short, sassy ones...a military uniform here and there adding still more color to the already colorful dining room hung with holiday finery.

Mrs. Leo Bliley, charge d'affaires, stopped counting heads when she reached 470...a lot of tapping feet under one roof.

Not the place, nor the pace, for grown-ups...but we'll see the next one through to the bitter end. We know how they arrive...how they leave, after hours of mad, mad, mad fun...another happening.

Shouldn't Happenings Be Forgotten?

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

The whirl of parties and special happenings began as early as a month ago. It reached a fever pitch the last few days before Christmas, took a few days off to rest, then charged full speed a head to New Year's Eve.

The gaiety and frivolity of the season have now been replaced by the somberness and sobriety that comes with the realization the party season is over.

Highballs have been replaced by due bills. Lavish and expensive parties have been replaced by quiet reflection over the 1966 income tax forms that arrived in the mail even before the hangover subsided.

But, by golly, it was all fun while it lasted. None of us would trade it for the world, and we'll do it all over again next year.

To single out one or even a few of the marvelous parties and gatherings of the season would be sheer madness. To try to describe them all would be worse lunacy. To discuss none of them would be heresy. So we'll lump a lot of parties and happenings together. If you recognize yours, that's fine.

Incidentally, "happenings" is a word apparently coined by the usual writer of this column, Jeanne Magee Tucker. We have no idea exactly what it means, but it seems to cover every type of social fling from Bar Mitzvahs to wakes.

First there was that eggno party where the fellow in the paisley tie in an awful shade of magenta and the matching madras socks spilled the entire contents of his glass on the hostess's brand new wall-to-wall carpet. She smiled and gritted her teeth. The carpet-folks' truck was parked out front the next day. Next came the annual Ladies Night at the lodge, where the men sat around sedately and told clean stories for a change.

But that party ended successfully, too, after the old wassail bowl was passed around enough times. Even the overweight old broad in the shimmering blue dress that was two sizes too small seemed to have a good time. Glad she shed those matching pumps when she did the watusi.

Never will we forget that children's party at the club. Santa was the thinnest man we've ever seen. Must have been on a low-fat diet since last year. Actually I was glad. We have a small chimney.

The kids seemed to have a wonderful time, especially that little boy in the entirely red flannel suit, white shirt and red tie, the one with vanilla ice cream dripping down his trousers.

The adults had a nice party at the club, too, on Christmas Eve. Everyone seemed to have a good time particularly that one man with the tie that lighted up and the martini dripping down his vest. Must have been the father of the kid in the red suit.

Then there was New Year's Eve and its round of parties. There was the neighborhood gathering early in the evening where people with absolutely nothing in common except living next door to each other sat around and talked about their children and the latest recipe for ginger snaps.

That was followed by the party everyone really wanted to go to in the first place where good friends lifted too many glasses of cheer.

Last but not least was the all-night skating session at the roller rink. It was the only thing still open and some folks had an even harder time standing up on those skates than usual. The fashions there were pretty unusual... everything from a mini-skirt that proved quite interesting when the lady fell down to slacks that looked like they had been done by a very bad finger painter.

By the way, Mrs. Tucker, we really looked, and we never did see any of those silly pantsuits either. Who does wear the things?

One happening we almost forgot... the office Christmas party. What was in that punch anyway and who cleaned up the floor in the newsroom? For anyone who attended that party, we'll be selling copies of the pictures we took. The price tag will be whatever it's worth to you.

Anyway, wasn't it a great party season? As soon as we get that hole from a cigarette burn in the suit coat reweaved and get the wife a new pair of shoes to replace the ones that were stepped all over, we'll be able to relax and remember it all. Happy January, folks.

Let's Simmer A Stew

The holidays are behind us, but the cold days are ahead. To boot, the season to be merry has no doubt weakened the family's financial structure considerably -- two perfectly legitimate reasons to get into a stew, with hearty soups, and cold weather casseroles.

But it's 1967, a brand new year that calls for a brand new approach to the stew story. The Flemish Beef Stew recipe which follows, will help you get off to a brand new start.

It derives its characteristic and mysterious flavor from beer, as part of the liquid, and the subtle seasoning of thyme, brown sugar and vinegar. If you like, omit these ingredients but substitute, as indicated at the end of the recipe, and you will have English Style Beef Stew; equally as good.

CARBONADE'S FLAMANDE (Flemish Beef Stew)

- 3 T flour
- 2 tsp salt
- 1/4 tsp black pepper
- 2 pounds lean beef stew meat, cut in 1-1/2-inch cubes
- 2 T cooking oil
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1 T dark brown sugar
- 1 can (12 ounces) beer
- 1 can (10-1/4 ounces) beef broth
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/4 tsp dried thyme, crumbled
- 2 T red wine vinegar
- 1 package (1-1/4 pounds) frozen stew vegetables
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 2 T chopped parsley

Blend together flour, salt and pepper; roll meat pieces in mixture. Heat oil in 4-quart Dutch oven; brown meat, a few pieces at a time, removing pieces when browned. Add onion and cook until transparent. Sprinkle with sugar; mix well. Return meat to casserole. Add beer, broth, bay leaf, thyme and vinegar. Bring to boil. Reduce heat. Cover; let simmer slowly 1 hour (or place a preheated 325 degree oven for 1 hour). Add vegetables and peas; continue to cook 20 to 30 minutes, or until meat and vegetables are tender. Remove bay leaf. Sprinkle top with parsley.

English-Style Beef Stew: Omit beer, brown sugar and vinegar. For the liquid, use 2 cups beef broth or 1-1/2 cups beef broth and 1/2 cup red wine.

A Party At The Post

GETTING TO KNOW EACH OTHER ARE BEING SECOND LIEUTENANT JOHN J. KIGGINS, COMPANY E, 3rd SCHOOL BATTALION EXECUTIVE OFFICER, AND JOEY. THEY MET AT A PARTY AT FORT STORY WHICH INCLUDED DINNER BY CANDY LIGHT (ABOVE), CHRISTMAS DAY.

Fort Story had company for dinner Christmas Day.

The post opened wide its entrance to roll in hundreds of underprivileged children for gifts and goodies in the post gymnasium and mess hall.

Officers and enlisted men of Company E, 3rd Battalion of the Army Transportation School planned the party and served as hosts to a company of 4 to 12-year-olds selected through Salvation Army headquarters in Norfolk.

Contributions from Company E personnel produced some $300 in gifts; the company mess steward produced a turkey and roast beef dinner, complete with all the trimmings, and the Army men produced a happy, happy holiday for some 80 Telewater youngsters.

Vandals Warned

Mailboxes are protected by Federal law, and pranksters or vandals who damage or destroy the boxes and their contents may be in for a heavy fine or imprisonment, warned Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr.

The Postmaster noted that some 25,000 mail receptacles were damaged or destroyed in the past year. It was also noted that 2,641 persons were arrested in the year up to June 30 for damaging or destroying mail receptacles.

"Pranksters--and especially children who do not know any year, according to the just-better--should be made to realize the seriousness of their of the non-profit overs as aid actions," the Postmaster said, agency.

A $1,000 fine or a term in jail is enough to take the humor out of any prank."

Often the mailbox damage is the work of youths, who do it for "kicks." And the courts have shown little sympathy for this youthful means of expression. In Michigan, a justice sentenced two 18-year olds to 10 days in jail, including two on a diet of baby food. The diet specification, explained the judge, was because the youths "acted like babies." They were also fined $25 each plus $15 costs.

CARE Achieves 10-Year Record

Public contributions to CARE in fiscal 1966 set a 10-year record of $12,173,345, or $1 million more than the previous year, according to the just-published 20th Annual Report. The report shows that these donations by the people of the United States and Canada were multiplied into nearly $93 million in food, self-help and medical aid delivered to needy people in 40 countries of Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin American and the Middle East. The total includes U.S. Food for Peace donations and host government support toward internal expenses. Cumulative value of distributions since 1946 is $852 million.

Refugees and other civilian war-victims in South Vietnam dominated CARE's attention in the past year, the report points out.

The Christmas shoplifting season is over for another year, and the amount of merchandise lost to sticky-fingered thieves in Virginia Beach is described as "tremendous".

Shoplifting goes on all year long in all types of retail establishments, according to Virginia Beach Police Chief James E. Moore.

"But during the Christmas season we just have more of it," he said. "Crowded conditions in the stores and busy inexperienced clerks make it a little easier for the shoplifter."

Professional shoplifters, who make their questionable livings shoplifting then selling the merchandise to a "fence", account for the largest number of this type of criminal, according to Chief Moore and several store managers.

The thrill-seeker and compulsive shoplifter or kleptomaniac account for a lesser amount of loss.

"Few stores are willing to prosecute the shoplifter, as long as they get their merchandise back," said Chief Moore. "The burden of proof falls upon the store and too often they are not willing to go through the entire complicated legal process."

Chief Moore noted that this attitude is slowly changing, however. He said that at least two large stores in Virginia Beach are now prosecuting shoplifters to the letter of the law.

Several shoplifters have been turned over to police in Virginia Beach during this Christmas shopping season, and are now awaiting trial or hearing, according to police officials.

"Often the shoplifter is a juvenile," said Chief Moore. "The store manager takes no action and we never even hear about it, because he doesn't want to cause any trouble."

Large stores, particularly food stores and self-service stores, fall victim to the shoplifter easier than does the small establishment for obvious reasons.

Many of these stores, however, are installing elaborate mirror or alarm systems and have a number of uniformed and non-uniformed floorwalkers watching shoppers carefully.

"The general public does not want to get involved," said one large store manager who asked not to be identified. "But we wish they would help us by letting us know about anything they see. We'll take it from there."

The same manager said that his part-time and full-time clerks are instructed carefully at the time they are hired concerning the methods employed by shoplifters.

"I think we're finally gaining on the problem," he said.

Still, valuable and not-so-valuable merchandise continues to disappear off the shelves each year to the tune of $600 million nationwide in the two weeks prior to Christmas.

Someone has to pay for the loss. It has been estimated by one chain store owner that prices could be reduced as much as 10 to 15 per cent if shoplifting could be stopped completely.

The consumer must pay the price. The shoplifter is merely the cause.

Beach Tops Bond Goal

Virginia Beach bought more than twice their goal of Series E and H Savings Bonds in 1966 according to John H. Randolph Jr., state chairman.

The goal for the year was $210,000 and $423,672 worth were bought -- 202 percent of the goal. E. V. Slatum is Virginia Beach chairman. The state total sales were $84,158,477 or 92 percent of the $91,200,000 goal.

It means low in cost. The new dividend scale for 1967 is substantially higher. Result: Next year policyholders will receive over $5 million more than they would have if the scale had remained unchanged. In fact, the new scale is almost double what it was 20 years ago. In that time, there have been 12 increases in dividends. That's what we mean by "low in cost, too!" But that's not all. We've added new benefits and riders -- and have liberalized others. All "Blue Chip" quality. Look into "Blue Chip" life insurance today. It's better than ever.

"Good Bunch of Boys" Register for Draft

The tall, thin, studious-looking young man hesitated at the door of the gray shingled building at the Courthouse before entering.

Inside was another young man with his father and younger brother. Both young men were there for the same reason--to register for the draft with the Selective Service Board within five days of their eighteenth birthday as required by law.

"We really have a good bunch of boys here," commented Mrs. Johnnie Hartley, clerk of Board 100. "They're never unruly. We've never had any picketing or anything like that."

The January draft call is for 27 in comparison with 55 for last January. "But generally the calls have been higher this year than last," said Mrs. Hartley.

The draft call is set by the state on the basis of the number of draft registrations. The state call is set by the Department of Defense. Presently only 19-year-olds are being drafted. "We called our first group of married 1-A's (classification available for military service) in November."

She explained that the higher draft call was not caused so much by Vietnam as it was by the population increase in the area.

A total of 309 young men from Virginia Beach were drafted in 1966, including the month of December.

Mrs. Hartley said there are more than 10,000 young men in Virginia Beach registered for the draft. There were only 3,000 when she took over her job 13 years ago.

Registrants are drafted by age. Each month the oldest 1-A, 19-year-old is selected first.

When asked about young men trying to avoid service, Mrs. Hartley said, "They don't have a lot of excuses. They do have a lot of physical ailments, though."

"These should be verified by a doctor and attached to their records. Physical capabilities are then determined by a service physician in Richmond. The burden of proof is on the registrant."

She said that many also tried to qualify for deferment. Many of these are college students. They may now be drafted at 26 whether they have completed college or not. "There have always been a few 'professional' students."

"Somehow students are never at fault when they flunk a course."

It's always some 'stupid' professor who can't teach a class," Mrs. Hartley said.

"Parents are more of a problem than their sons," she said. "Mothers are more weepy, but the fathers always argue about the way we do things."

From here draftees are taken to Richmond for their physical examinations, then returned. Inductees are also taken to Richmond where they are then assigned to bases for training. "The main thing around here is not to lose your temper no matter what happens," said Mrs. Hartley.

Progressive Chamber Foreseen

Brad Pulley is a man who, as he says, "can't seem to get out of being appointed to committees."

He has just begun his second term as president of the Chamber of Commerce. One of his goals for the year is the formation of a retail merchants association for the city.

"We'd like it to be an arm of the Chamber of Commerce but not run by it," Pulley said. "It would be a division of the Chamber. We're both interested in the same thing, and there would be a better working relationship by channeling our plans through a central head."

Pulley said that the Chamber wants to promote the interest of the retailer. "So many of our members are in retail trade."

"We are not forgetting the tourists. They still make up a major part of the city income. But we want to promote industry too."

A brochure is being prepared to send to industries, Pulley said. The chamber is also working with the city industrial Commission and the Jaycees on their billboard project to promote an "Industrial Virginia Beach."

"This is a good place for families to live," Pulley said, "and there's certainly plenty of land for development."

In a rundown of other Chamber committees, Pulley said that the Agriculture Committee has been very busy and is now in the process of buying calves for the Junior Steer Program. Calves are bought by the Chamber and given to teenagers to raise. They are later judged in an area-wide show and sold. The teenagers repay the Chamber for the calves and keep the profit.

The Education Committee plans to have a welcoming program for new teachers since so many come from outside the area.

The Tourist Committee is planning to attend major travel shows. Another accomplishment was the adoption of a uniform code for motels and hotels.

"We put some teeth in it," Pulley said. The ultimate penalty is expulsion from the Chamber. Inn keepers agreed on the code concerning treatment of customers.

"We're attempting to improve the image of Virginia Beach," said Pulley, adding that too much time had been spent investigating tourists complaints.

BRADFORD PULLEY

Chamber membership now totals more than 700 according to Pulley. But he wants to increase it to 1,100 by the end of the year, something he believes can be done by systematically calling on all merchants. "A lot are just waiting to be asked."

The Chamber is also taking part in the area Chamber of Commerce committee made up of Portsmouth, Nansemond County, Suffolk, Norfolk and Virginia Beach. Pulley pointed out that the group has greater influence jointly than individually in regard to state legislation and Congressional action. They plan to develop an area magazine he said.

The committee will be the beginning of other joint groups, Pulley forecast. "Then we can realize our greatest potential in the shortest period of time."

Among other things, Pulley is on the Neighborhood Planning Committee of ACTION and the board of the United Fund. He was formerly chairman of the Red Cross Chapter before it was absorbed by Norfolk and was chairman of the United Fund drive here.

Looking ahead to the Chamber in 1967 Pulley concluded,

Analyzing U. S. Commerce Department and Securities and Exchange Commission figures, The Wall Street Journal has reported, "Business is planning only a modest increase in capital outlays for early 1967, removing a key argument for an income tax increase."

Response to Howell

No Conflict, Say Letters

A State Highway Commissioner and an attorney employed by the State Highway Department in land condemnation cases have both written Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr., to comment on suggestions made by State Senator Henry E. Howell, Jr., for conflict-of-interest legislation.

Richard S. Holland, highway commissioner representing the Suffolk district, which includes Virginia Beach, said he would make his files available for inspection.

So did Edwin C. Kellam whose office represents the highway department in land acquisition cases.

Howell last week suggested to the governor that laws be made against conflict-of-interest of persons connected with the highway department. (In 1962, the highway department passed a resolution stating that no highway commissioner, either directly or indirectly, shall have any interest which would benefit him by virtue of their office speculation, says J. E. Harwood, deputy highway commissioner.)

Howell has for some time been talking about conflict-of-interest legislation. He has alleged conflict-of-interest with certain attorneys employed by the Attorney General for land condemnation for highways.

The two letters follow:
Dear Governor Godwin:

A few days ago I received a copy of a letter written by Senator Henry E. Howell, Jr. to you, concerning suggested legislation against conflict of interest of persons connected with the State Highway Department.

At the outset, I wish to say that I have not the slightest objection to any such legislation yet, I do not propose to suggest to you, or the General Assembly, what legislation should be enacted in this regard.

Lowenthal Wins Two VPA Awards

Two annual Virginia Press Association writing awards have gone to Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN.

Lowenthal won first place in the local column writing category and an honorable mention in the series of articles category.

The competition was open to all weekly newspapers in Virginia, which are members of Virginia Press Association.

Mrs. Doris Padrick, former women's editor of the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, was given the runner-up award in the series of articles category.

LOWENTHAL

The awards will be presented to Lowenthal and Mrs. Padrick during the annual winter meeting of the Virginia Press Association being held at the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel in Norfolk.

The awards banquet comes at the close of the meeting, Saturday, January 14.

Microfilm Records

In a Cavern, In a Canyon...

The official records of the City of Virginia Beach have gone underground, or at least a microfilm copy of them.

Space is rented in a mammoth subterranean vault in the mountains of western Pennsylvania by the City and the records are stored there at extremely low cost. In the nuclear attack-proof cavern 220 feet below the surface, Virginia Beach records are virtually indestructible.

Fifty miles from Pittsburgh there is a worked-out limestone mine bought and developed at a cost of $500,000 by National Storage Company, Inc. The impregnable depository has 80 acres available for storage of business and official records in both private room vaults or in long rows of storage bins. Access to the fortress is available through one large portal by motor vehicle. The roadway winds down 110 feet through solid limestone and other rock to the single door large enough to accommodate the largest tractor-trailer unit.

Just inside the entrance the driver is met by armed guards who are on duty at all times and who control the opening and closing of a giant three-ton steel gate.

Once inside an entire underground world opens up. Not only are there storage facilities but also disaster proof offices and a spacious emergency control headquarters.

The facility is entirely self-sustaining. It can furnish enough

$750,000 Medical Complex Set for Beach

A $750,000 medical complex will be built on First Colonial Road just north of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Plans for the three-story buildings will be presented to the City Planning Commission for final approval at the January meeting.

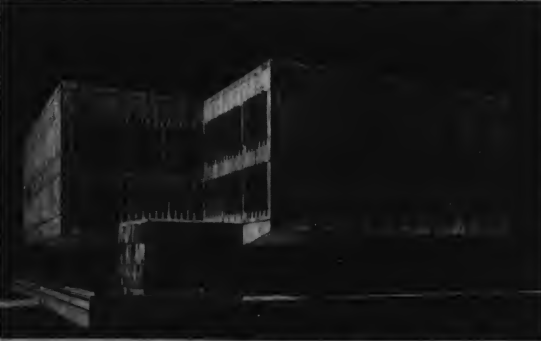

"A group of doctors has purchased about six acres of land for the development of the complex," said Dr. Robert J. Robertson, Jr., spokesman for the group of doctors. "There will be space in the building for about 20 doctors."

There will be about 40,000 square feet of floor space in the three stories, and plans call for the facility to be expandable to five stories.

"We hope to be able to begin construction by late spring," said Dr. Robertson. "Bids should go out in April."

Doctors practicing a large number of specialties will be housed in the building, according to Dr. Robertson.

presented include internal medicine, general surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, oral surgery, orthopedic surgery, urology, psychiatry, ear, nose and throat and ophthalmology.

"In many cases there will be more than one doctor in a particular specialty," said Dr. Robertson.

The completely self-sustaining facility will also have its own laboratory and x-ray equipment.

John Walter of Virginia Beach is the consulting architect. The building was designed by Ellerbe Architects, of Saint Paul, Minn.

Disappointment Voiced

Sewerage Lines Stop at Bridge-Tunnel

END OF THE LINE FOR SEWERAGE LINE. THESE 24 AND 42-INCH SECTIONS OF PIPE WILL BE PUT UNDERGROUND TO A POINT JUST EAST OF PLEASURE HOUSE ROAD.

Residents of Baylake Pines, and Ocean Park may be disappointed to learn that sewerage lines won't be extended to their communities for some time. So will some members of City Council.

The Clean Waters Project of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission now being built along Shore Drive will end at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

"I was under the impression it was going to the Lesner Bridge," said Councilman Lawrence Marshall. "At Bonney and I were talking about it the other day and he was under that impression, too."

A spokesman for the HRSD said, however, that the project calls for 24 and 42-inch sewer lines to be laid to just east of Pleasure House Road and that there are no plans at present to extend them any further.

The spokesman did not discount the possibility that the lines can be extended.

The lines are being placed under ground by the A.G. Pinkston Company and the Navy at Little Creek will grant the HRSD to use, temporarily, some of the capacity of the Navy's sewage treatment plants on the military base.

The HRSD now has under construction on the base a big sewage treatment plant of its own but it won't be finished for 18 months or two years.

Marshall, who represents the residents of Bayside on City Council, said he understood the lines would be extended to the Lesner bridge by the fall of 1967. "I know some other members of the City Council who were under that impression, too."

"I could well be in error," he added.

The spokesman for the HRSD emphasized that there are no plans at present to extend the service farther down Shore Drive because no one has indicated a desire for it to be extended.

Not Time to Give Up

Webbon Still Seeking Federal Funds

Virginia Beach's coordinator of urban affairs doesn't share the frustration of his Norfolk counterpart in seeking federal funds.

"I do not think this is the time to give up," said Richard J. Webbon. "Another six months will tell the tale."

His comments were made after Arthur S. Owens, coordinator of urban affairs in Norfolk, quit his job, saying he was frustrated over his inability to secure federal aid for the city. Webbon, who said he had encountered all the problems that Owens had encountered in tracking down federal money, cites these Virginia Beach projects which have been reviewed by various federal agencies for possible funding:

1. Sandbridge recreation area, federal funds possible, $262,000.
2. Green Run Farm, federal funds possible, $322,000.
3. City beautification program, federal funds possible over a five year period, $300,000.
4. Water application (water mains), federal funds possible $750,000. (The amount of federal funds possible was reduced from $1,411,000 at the request of the Housing and Urban Development agency.)

The first two projects, Webbon said, are "open space" projects which are primarily for recreational purposes.

Webbon has been coordinator of urban affairs for Virginia Beach since November 1965. He is, in effect, a lobbyist for the city for federal aid.

WEBBON

In his job, which pays $13,500 a year, Webbon averages about two trips a month to call on about 15 federal agencies in Richmond, Philadelphia and Washington, D. C. Salary and expenses cost the city about $16,000 last year.

At present he is preparing an application for federal funds for the development of Rudee Inlet and canals throughout the city.

Owens said that neither one Norfolk city agency knows what the other is doing. He said he has proposed that all aid requests be channeled through one department.

Webbon said his situation is different. "We've had cooperation throughout the city in applications from the Planning Commission, the Public Works Department and the Health Department being processed through my office."

The Johnson administration has been forced to cut back on spending because of the war in Vietnam but economists predict a loosening of tight money in the future.

"Basically, HUD programs are sound," said Webbon. "I do not think this is the time to give up."

Owens on February 1 will become associate director for development of Ferrum Junior College. City Manager Thomas F. Maxwell said he did not plan to fill the job immediately.

Liquor Still Broken Up

Virginia Beach Police and special investigators of the Federal Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division have broken up a liquor still near Creeds.

It was the first one to be destroyed in Virginia Beach this year.

W. T. McFarland, area supervisor of the ATTD, said the 55-gallon was located in the woods about two miles south of Creeds and had a fermenting capacity of 1,540 gallons.

The agents found 700 gallons of mash on hand but no whiskey. Making the raid were Jackie V. Neal, Emmett J. Burke, and McFarland, all of the ATTD, and Det. Sgt. Carl R. West of the Virginia Beach police.

Building Permits Down

"This is the worst I've ever seen it in my 11 years with the city of Virginia Beach," said John E. Gibbs, Supervisor of Inspections for the city.

Gibbs was commenting on the heavy drop of building permits issued in Virginia Beach in 1966 over 1965.

Building permits during 1966 were issued for construction valued at $39,304,422, down $24,217,310 from 1965.

The largest single drop was in single-family residence construction. Only 1120 permits were issued in 1966, compared to 1,978 in 1965. The total value of those 1966 permits was $21,226,315, down more than $15 million over 1965.

Construction of water, sewer and septic tank facilities were also down considerably, because of the lack of new homes being built.

1966 Accidents

People, Not Construction, Raise Toll

The three worst intersections in Virginia Beach during 1966 proved to be at Virginia Beach Boulevard and Chinese Corner, Kellam Road and Plaza Trail.

"More vehicular and pedestrian accidents happened at those spots than at any other places in Virginia Beach," said Reeves Johnson, Director of Public Safety. "And all three are in heavily traveled and highly populated areas."

There were 3,991 accidents recorded by the Virginia Beach

Police Department during 1966. Nearly a thousand of which were non-reportable to State authorities because damage was under $50.

"With all the construction going on, I had really expected more accidents," said Johnson. "But I'm glad I was wrong."

Construction on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway raised traffic slowdowns, both in crossing the road and detouring around sites. Traffic was also slowed by bridge construction on Shore Drive.

Before the new span of Lester Bridge was completed, additional work on the old span kept traffic down to one lane for some time.

"I believe the reason there were so few accidents at all the construction sites was the tremendous number of warning signs placed for the motorists' protection," said Lt. C. R. Bailey, head of the Traffic Bureau of Virginia Beach Police.

"In addition," he added, "the contractors hired a large number of off-duty policemen and auxiliary policemen to direct traffic at the various danger spots."

Although the actual count of accidents was up in 1966, the number of vehicles on the road is greater and the number of miles driven on Virginia Beach roads is far greater, according to Johnson.

"Virginia Beach Boulevard is not the killer it used to be," said Johnson. "People are finally being more careful on that road, and traffic is often so heavy that they can't go too fast anyway."

The Department of Public Safety saw to it that a lot of work was done on Virginia Beach Boulevard during 1966 that was intended to make the main artery safer.

New left-turn lanes were added at Birchwood and at Independence Boulevard. Several additional crossovers were closed to keep traffic from creating a hazard by crossing the road.

New openings were created from the Boulevard to the feeder roads also for the smoother flow of traffic, according to Johnson.

The summer months produced the largest number of accidents, reaching a peak in July with 495. The lowest number was 239 in November, according to Bailey.

The number of traffic fatalities in Virginia Beach dropped by one in 1966 to 24 as the result of 22 accidents. The worst was a triple fatality in August on Salem Road in a non-collision accident.

"It was raining when one of the fatalities occurred and mistily when two others happened," said Bailey. "But the rest happened in good weather when the roads were dry."

"Fatalities occurred more often in non-collision accidents than in collisions," said Johnson.

Both Johnson and Bailey were encouraged by the low accident rate in the first few days of 1967.

"The New Year holiday produced fewer accidents here than in many years," said Bailey.

"I hope the first few days show a real trend and that we really see a great reduction of accidents and fatalities in 1967," added Johnson.

There's a new bright spot on Virginia Beach Boulevard just west of Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center.

Thompson-Royal Dodge is bright during the day with the brisk activity of a progressive automobile agency. And it's bright at night because of the beautifully decorated interior of the showroom and the many lights on the outside lots.

William G. Thompson operated Coates Motor Company on Pacific Avenue for many years. A year ago, Walter Royal became his partner.

The result of the partnership has been an expanded business in a new location and with a brand new name.

The new building on a three-acre site was built at a cost in excess of $350,000 and was fully opened for business just three weeks before the close of 1966.

Thompson and Royal are looking forward to a good year in their new building. They expect to sell about 800 new and used vehicles this year.

That will probably take a lot of discussion, but they are ready for that too. They will be meeting in the second-floor conference room.

Virginia Beach Boulevard is fast becoming the automobile agency mecca, and Thompson-Royal will be joined by three more agencies within this year. Should it become necessary to expand, Bill Thompson and Walter Royal are ready for that too. They saw to it that provisions were built into their design for future growth.

Meanwhile Thompson-Royal has become the first new automobile agency in Virginia Beach in many years.

James R. McKenry, partner in the Virginia Beach law firm of Brydges, Broyles and McKenry, will serve as campaign chairman of the 1967 Heart Fund Campaign in Virginia Beach. It was announced today by Louis Jones of Norfolk, campaign director of the Tidewater Heart Association.

The campaign will be conducted throughout the month of February across the nation in an effort to raise funds to combat diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

McKenry, a native of Richmond, is a member of Virginia State Bar Association, Virginia Bar Association, Virginia Trial Lawyer's Association, Virginia Beach Bar Association, University of Virginia Alumni Association, and the Tidewater Heart Association. He is vice president and co-founder of the Virginia Beach Chapter of University of Virginia Alumni Association.

McKenry lives at 1004 Brandon Rd. with his wife, Monica, and their two children Jimmy, three, and Cole, one.

New Jets Arrive

"The Grim Reapers" of Fighter Squadron 101 became the first activity based at NAS Oceana to receive the new F4J Phantom II fighterbombers that arrived December 23.

The F4J is the most recent Navy version of the now familiar dual engine aircraft, and is easily recognizable due to the absence of the infrared "chin" below the nose radome and a beaked up landing gear which increases the aircraft's maximum landing weight.

A more sophisticated weapons system and larger engines are scheduled for later models of the F4J. But the present aircraft will nevertheless greatly aid "Deto" in its task of training all Atlantic Fleet Phantom replacement officers in conventional weapons delivery, aerial refueling and day/night carrier qualifications.

Another Hunting Accident

A hunting accident has taken the life of a young Virginia Beach lad. Nicholas Themides, 13, is dead of a gunshot wound suffered while on a hunting expedition with his brother and his grandfather.

The death of a child is always a sad occurrence, but when it happens in an accident that most likely could have been prevented, it is even sadder.

The circumstances of this particular case are insignificant. The fact that a hunting accident has taken a child's life is.

Every year more and more hunting accidents are reported. Most of those occur simply due to carelessness. To the casual observer it is inconceivable that anyone who takes gun in hand for a hunting trip does not have a healthy respect for it.

Firearms are extremely dangerous. The hunter should certainly know this. Look what a shotgun can do to his prey.

Guns should never be in the hands of those who cannot recognize the danger of them or who cannot be trusted to handle them.

In addition extreme care should be taken in cleaning, loading, unloading or transporting a gun. Lots of people have been killed or maimed by supposedly unloaded guns.

Another common hunting accident occurs when another hunter is mistaken for fair game. This particular type of mayhem is inexcusable when a gun is in the hands of an otherwise responsible individual.

Hunting is a sport, and most sports offer some kinds of danger; but where a deadly weapon is involved, it seems that more care should be taken to make the sport as safe as possible.

Hunting accidents take a completely unnecessary toll each and every year. Hundreds of would-be sportsmen are killed. Countless others are injured. Many of those carry the scars the rest of their lives, even in the loss of limbs or sight.

In Virginia Beach one young boy has died. Let his death serve as a warning to all other hunters.

Our New Judge... P. B. White

P. B. White decided he would not seek election again to his seat in the Virginia General Assembly. His legislative wisdom in that body where he served ably for six years will be missed.

But Richmond's loss is Virginia Beach's gain. P. B. White is home again and in a position that he will fill competently and capably.

Prior to his service in the house of Delegates, P. B. White served as Assistant Judge of Princess Anne County Court. His judicial ability and fairness were well proved at that time.

Now he has been appointed to the bench again, this time as Associate Judge of Virginia Beach Municipal Court. The choice of Judge White is an excellent one.

He has served his city well even before his first appointment to the legal bench. Besides being a highly respected attorney he was also chairman of the Princess Anne County Electoral Board.

We know P. B. White to be a man always ready with a smile and a serious opinion. He is a man who never takes responsibility lightly.

We congratulate the city upon choosing such a fine man as P. B. White upon his new appointment.

Traffic Fatalities in 1966

It is encouraging that we are able to report one less traffic fatality in Virginia Beach in 1966 than in 1965; but at the same time, to report there were still 24 deaths is not at all pleasant.

The breakdown of that statistic is even less than encouraging. The 24 fatalities were the result of 22 accidents. Three persons were killed in one accident and two in another. One-third of those killed were pedestrians. One was a bicycle hit-and-run accident. Of the remaining 15, few were collision accidents.

Most occurred on dry roads in clear weather, and were the result of reckless driving, drunk driving, and downright foolish joyriding.

Hitting a tree, going into a ditch or not making it around a curve caused traffic deaths. The ditch, the tree and the curve are not responsible. Human error is responsible.

In the eight pedestrian deaths, someone had to be at fault, and in nearly all cases it was the fault of the pedestrian being where he was not supposed to be or being in the right under questionable circumstances.

The major arteries in Virginia Beach were not the killers in 1966. It was the more rural roads, less patrolled and less populated. Too often drivers took too much for granted, including their own driving ability and found death waiting for them.

The total of 3,991 automobile accidents is not a good record either. Things are not going to get better until the driver finally takes matters into his own hands and drives carefully and defensively.

'HEY! WHERE DID EVERYONE GO?'

Q. What is the total number gasoline-powered automobiles and trucks on the roads of the United States today?

Jim A. Virginia Beach A. I'm afraid you'll have to settle for an approximation. An American Automobile Association spokesman says there are 100 million registered automobiles and trucks in the United States today. That includes diesel-powered engines also.

Spokesman for trucking companies in the area could not really agree, but through a census, it would appear that about 20 million of those vehicles are diesel-powered.

To complicate matters a little more, the federal government and the military do not register any of their vehicles, and in fact, the number of vehicles actually falling into that category would seem to be strategically classified information.

The number of Post Office Department vehicles is included in that unknown quantity owned by the federal government. And think how many mail trucks of all sizes and shapes there are.

A wild guess made by a source who asked not to be identified of the unregistered vehicles totalled about 10 million.

So would you believe a total of 120 million vehicles, powered by all types of engines roaming the roads of America? That's a lot of pollution. And it boils down to about one-half a vehicle for every man, woman and child in the United States. How about that?

You Can't Tell the Players...

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

Trying to prepare a scorecard so that everyone will be able to know all the players is a gargantuan task. The names are familiar for the most part, but arranging them on the correct teams is the problem.

Political Potpourri

In several cases, those on the political "inside" are now on the "outside," and in at least one case, a one-time "outsider" is now on the "inside." The "inside" denotes the long-time dominant Democratic Organization. Obviously, then, the "outside" denotes those opposing the organization.

The scorecard is not yet completed. It still has a couple of blank spaces. And one player is not yet sure of what team he wants to play on.

From the looks of things, however, long before the April filing date for the Democratic primary in July, it looks like two distinct teams will emerge. While the Organization is already presenting a united front, those in opposition are not. It would seem, however, that unity will yet be the course of the opposition.

The watchdog political group, Good Government Association, which claims non-partisanship, is badly split at present on the question of endorsing candidates for any of the offices at stake. Part of the higher-ups want no part of endorsing candidates as such, but say they will work for certain members of the opposition individually. The other higher-ups want to use GGA to further the aims of several opposition candidates.

So on this day in January, this is the way the scorecard looks. Perhaps we should add... "Subject to change without notice"...

For the five Constitutional offices at stake in Virginia Beach only two are uncontested at present. Mapp has no announced opponent in his bid for re-election to the Commissioner of Revenue's job.

John Marr, presently holding down the job of City Sergeant, says he will run again but has seemingly turned his back on the Organization that elected him last time. There are rumblings within the Organization that would suggest strongly that it will support someone other than Mr. Marr eventually.

Robert Simpson, now Commonwealth's attorney, will not run again. The Organization has rallied behind Owen Pickett, a young Virginia Beach attorney, Long-time Organization supporter, Andre Evans, is opposing Pickett and the Organization.

The Clerk of Circuit Court job is now held by John Fentress, who will run again with Organization support. Probably the biggest surprise so far in this political hassle came when Organization stalwart and potential Organization candidate, Richard Abelson left the fold and struck out on his own to run against Fentress.

City Treasurer, V. A. Etheridge, apparently removed his name from the Organization ranks when he did not attend three or more meetings to which he was invited, and where an Organization slate was to be discussed. He announced he would stand for re-election anyway against the Organization, the day after the Organization announced it was supporting Howard Merrill.

Merrill is a political newcomer and president of a new personnel business in Virginia Beach. Some say he is too young for the job. He is 27. Others say Etheridge is too old. He is 48. Age must have something to do with it, but that point isn't clear yet.

That takes care of the Constitutional officers, but members of the Virginia General Assembly are to be picked in that primary too.

For the House of Delegates it's a battle of newcomers all the way. Delegate Edward T. Caton III, former Organization man, announced he would oppose incumbent Organization man, William P. Kellam for Virginia Beach's share of the Third State Senatorial District. That began a chain reaction of announcements.

Electrical contractor B. R. Middleton announced he would seek Caton's seat, and the Organization welcomed back L. Charles Burlage to oppose Middleton. Burlage ran unsuccessfully for the State Senate in 1965 and was an outspoken critic of the Organization to which he once belonged. Now he has returned to the fold.

Then, the Organization announced that Kenneth Whitehurst, Jr., 28, son of City Councilman Kenneth Whitehurst of Pungo, would seek the other Virginia Beach seat in the house of Delegates. This brought forth the announcement from a challenger, Joseph A. Gawrys, attorney and former Naval officer.

That completes the scorecard to date. The races are already shaping up for a fine political fight. And the first election day of the year is not until July. Could be an interesting year.

carl cahill is here

There he sits. The disc jockey, I mean. He's hunched over his console, sipping coffee, a smug look on his handsome face as he moves his body to the beat of the latest hit record.

He shoots his cuffs, throws a switch, swivels smoothly around in his chair and speaks into the microphone. His carefully-pronounced, well-modulated phrases are hurled instantly through vacuum tubes to radios all over Tidewater Virginia.

"This is WVAB, Virginia Beach, Virginia. The time is 10:05 a.m." He punches a button and rises to look out over Pacific Avenue. In the distance is the blue Atlantic. Later, he'll change from a jacket to a cardigan sweater.

The broadcast operation appears to have no obstacles and from our perch at the back of the building we shoot our ragged cuffs and mumble incoherently about Johnny-come-latelys to the field of communication.

(There is one young radio man with whom all is apparently not well. He prowls restlessly back and forth, preoccupied, waiting for his stint on the air to begin. Behind him his car payments? Domestic troubles?)

Windowless, we see no blue Atlantic. Our horizon is a chocolate brown rim-fire Royal on which we laboriously peck out messages which are set in type and printed by ponderous machines.

There are many things to go wrong with our operation. The rollers on the press pick up lint, the waxer unaccountably specks out too much paraffin. The radio operation is interrupted only when a misguided motorist rips down a nearby utility pole, knocking out the power.

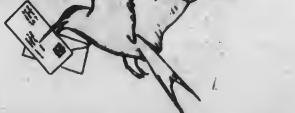

We are the Gutenbergs and we take a rather hazy pride in being here before the Marcons.

We resent a little the ease with which they flip switches and reach thousands of people. We reach thousands of people, too, but with no such ease.

Their machines hum softly as they translate words into waves; ours clack, rattle and roar as they move our thoughts from the typewriter to the presses.

There is one consolation: Our words of wisdom are more durable and will last, at least, until our readers clean out their trash baskets. Theirs fade instantly and are lost forever. Glamour is with them. But tradition is with us.

letters to the editor

SIMPLE SOLUTION

Dear Sir: In reference to your editorial of December 29, regarding the light of the Cape Henry lighthouse.

An obvious and simple solution, so obvious and simple that it has no doubt been overlooked. Why not recreate the original lighthouse that must have been erected at the same time the lighthouse was built. A small building, some fifty feet off, of lumber or bricks, a deep hole and a bag of lime, would complete the structure and also save the original structure of the lighthouse.

Very truly yours,
Betty Lancaster
(Mrs. E. A. Lancaster)

Concern for Future

Dear Sir: I am writing with regard to the picture and article entitled "Jaycees Promote Industry With Billboards" in the SUN on 23 December 1966. I do not share the enthusiasm for the industry-hunting campaign that is taking place in our city. I believe that the natural advantage of Virginia Beach for a rural-recreational-resort type environment leads in quite the opposite direction. Most of the people who live and have moved to our city have done so to get away from the crowded, industrial, urban city. I suppose much depends on the "industry" one is talking about, but we must be very selective in the type that we invite to Virginia Beach. The sociological factors which are emerging now from crowded and industrial-type communities, not to mention the attendant air and water pollution, should serve as a warning to us who at this moment are determining the kind of a community we will give to our children. It is almost an impossibility to retract once the move has begun. Let us all reflect on wherein lies our future happiness and well-being. Industry may not be the harbinger of good times that it often portrays.

One concerned for our future,
J. E. W.

Grapplers Win, Cagers Lose At Bayside

The BHS wrestling team won its first last Thursday night when they defeated Churchland, 31-11, in the Bayside gym. Bayside took nine of the twelve weight classes and broke a three-match losing streak. For the Marlins, Ricky Danels (95) won a forfeit; Todd Gallagher (105) shut-out Spruill, 3-0; Webb Doney (112) won over Shope, 14-1; Steve Gallagher (120) shut-out Kernsick, 6-0; Wayne Singleton (127) shut-out Jacobson, 5-0; Terry Melnhart (133) shut-out Whiteley, 5-0; Clay Temple (138) shut-out Kopelove, 10-0; Butch Strickland (154) shut-out Kastner, 11-0; and Bobby Crain (180) pinned Kenny Atkiss in 47 seconds. This week, the team travels to Oscar Smith on Wednesday and Great Bridge on Friday.

In basketball, Bayside did not fair so well, as the cagers of BHS went down to defeat at the hands of the Norview Pilots, 64-57 last Friday night. Norview's Bob Shevlin was a sliver the court that night, and his 21 points and 19 rebounds were too much for the Marlins to control. Bayside whittled the lead to only five points near the end of the game, but Shevlin made four free-throws and three field goals to give Norview its final scores. Bruce Gregory was high for Bayside with 17 points. The Marlins travel to Kellam on Friday, hosts Great Bridge on Friday, and also entertains Churchland on next Tuesday (all three are District games).

power, for lighting and heating for up to 30 days. A 25 circuit telephone cable runs to the floor of the vault. Full kitchen facilities are also provided in the event of emergency.

In the 11 years of operation, only about 12 acres have been converted to storage area, but more acreage is being converted continuously.

Although the City of Virginia Beach Circuit Court, began about three years ago by having all official records of the city and old Princess Anne County committed to microfilm by Security Microfilm Service of Danville, Virginia, then sent on to the Pennsylvania cave. He led this area also in microfilming the records for posterity.

The list of large companies which also use the underground maximum security vault include Westinghouse, Alcoa, Heinz 57, Babcock and Wilcox, Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a number of well-known banks.

Although the records are stored away neatly, they can be reached within moments by authorized personnel, and any company or official of a municipal government who wishes to refer to the records he may do so at any time by letter or telephone. Referral service is handled quickly and efficiently, according to Fentress.

Virginia law states that all records must be kept in their original books or state, but does not govern microfilm copies. The bulk of old records is piling up in Virginia Beach and other places. Fentress is hopeful the laws will soon be changed so that old records can be kept only on microfilm, which takes up far less space.

Regardless of any change in the law, Virginia Beach never has to worry about losing any records now, either to misplacing or to any type of disaster. All deed books, law and chancery records, wills, charters and the like have been duplicated and are rolled carefully away on microfilm in a mountain near Boyers, Pennsylvania.

The vault is not a tourist attraction, but it guarantees the safety of Virginia Beach records.

Undefeated Falcons Meet Granby on Friday

Cox will meet Granby on Friday in what may well decide the Eastern District Basketball Championship. Cox and Granby are both undefeated going into the game. Granby, the district choice, is favored over Cox to win. The game will start at 8:00 in the Granby gym.

The Falcons have surprised the entire district by going undefeated thus far into the season. At the beginning of the season, Coach Stuart Holland was pessimistic about the team.

Cox to Discuss

Budget Problems

Frank W. Cox, school superintendent, will discuss possibilities for and problems involved in adding textbooks or other additional items of the school budget at the January meeting of the Council of Civic Organizations Wednesday, at Bow Creek Country Club, at 6:30 p.m.

H. E. Dugro, Council president, announced that the meeting will be open to all interested members of local civic groups by advanced reservation. Information may be secured from his home.

Most thought that it would be hard to match last year's 11-7 record. Only one starter was returning from last year's squad.

The secret to the Falcon's success has been a well-rounded scoring attack. Six players have scored in double figures in three games. Another factor has been a successful fast break, led by guards John Knight and Bill Calfee. Both rank among the Eastern District's top ten scorers.

Cox held off a strong Oscar Smith team, led by the district high scorer Clark Wiseman, in defeating them 77-71. Bill Calfee was high scorer for the Falcons with his season high of 25 points. He made nine for nine from the foul line, and eight field goals from the floor. Calfee has now made twenty-one straight foul shots. Other double figure scorers include John Knight (16), Abby Sallenger (15), George Parr (11), and Jack Deiss (10).

The Cox wrestlers are also undefeated thus far into the season. The Falcons face a tough Norwist team tomorrow night at home. Cox easily overcame Kellam last week in a 33-9 victory. Chip Morgan, Alex Newton, and David Tew pinned their men. Bill Coleman, Wayne Coleman, Gary Beatson, Pete LeClaire, Bruce Whitaker, and Mike Murphy won their matches on decisions.

New Road, Bridge To Be Dedicated

The City of Virginia Beach will dedicate officially a new road and a new bridge on Friday, January 20.

The road is General Booth Boulevard, which extends from Rudee Boulevard to Oceana Boulevard at Dam Neck Boulevard.

The bridge is the new span of the Lesser Bridge over Lynnhaven Inlet on Shore Drive. General Booth Boulevard is receiving final touches at present and is expected to be opened to traffic shortly. The mostly two-lane road is a short-cut from Virginia Beach borough to City Hall through Camp Pendleton. Eventually it will be widened to four lanes.

Dedication ceremonies will be held on the new road at 11:30 a.m., and ceremonies on the bridge will be held at 12:30 p.m. The bridge has been open to traffic since early in December.

A program is being planned to include several state and city dignitaries at the ceremonies. Find Your Name Contest Winner: Mr. Donald L. McCrory, 3533 Royal Palm Arch, Va. Beach, you have just won 2 free passes to the Janaf Cinema to see "Penelope."

according to a spokesman in the City Manager's office. The programs will be followed by a luncheon at the Black Angus restaurant in Virginia Beach.

"Oh, about eighteen to twenty miles around town... twenty-four on trips."

TB Continues to Be Problem

Virginia ranks third in the United States in new active tuberculosis cases.

It also ranks seventh in its reported tuberculosis case load.

So what about Virginia Beach?

Of the 12,975 known cases of TB in the state in 1965-66, 191 of these were residents of Virginia Beach, and 42 were newly reported cases.

There is more to the story than a bunch of statistics. Although the average income of Virginia Beach is higher than that of the surrounding area, pockets of poverty still exist and will probably continue to exist. It is in these pockets that TB usually develops, Dr. Mudge May, director of the Public Health Dept., said.

"Particularly in areas of transition," Dr. May pointed out, "where the men are changing from farm laborers to construction work." Another example she used in areas where roads are being cut through and families are being uprooted.

"These people are under a lot of tension," she said, "and tension contributes to lowered resistance."

The Virginia Beach TB rate is lower than the state as a whole, but it is still of primary importance to the Health Dept., Dr. May said.

Dr. May said, rather ruefully, that national officials hoped to wipe out TB as a disease by 1970. "Unfortunately there was an increase in some places," she said that slums in large cities were the major cause of this.

"Now they hope to control it and get it to a minimum," said Dr. May.

An intensive contact tracing is begun once an active case is found. "We even go out of the state if necessary," Dr. May said.

All persons with whom the patient has had contact—relatives, friends and co-workers—are given a tuberculosis skin test. If this is positive, they are then given chest x-rays.

"We get to them as quickly as possible to prevent further spread of the disease," Dr. May said.

Patients are sent to state sanatoriums where the average stay is 240 days. "They don't stay away nearly as long as they used to," commented Dr. May.

from 887 units to 574 units at a financial drop of about $3 million.

Commercial permits also dropped but the value of the permits issued was up nearly $2 million.

"This was due to the large stores and shopping centers being built in 1966," said Gibbs.

The effect on the city budget is not certain, but since building permit fees fell $116,700 below 1965, and new revenue was not up to that anticipated some are speculating that a tax increase may be in the offing.

"The money men say things are looking up, but we can't see it yet," said building official James Lowell. "December 1966 permits totalled $785,215. In 1965 they totalled $2,377,738. Only 42 single family units were built in Virginia Beach. That's not what I'd call looking up."

Children sometimes have a positive skin test without having active TB. This is called a primary infection and is not contagious. It only shows that the child has been in contact with someone who has the disease.

All doctors are asked to test their child patients before they begin school. The skin test is also given at Public Health Dept. well-baby clinics and immunization clinics.

I can assure you, and everyone else, that I have not, at any time, done or condoned any act in conflict with my duties as a Member of the State Highway Commission.

I will be delighted to make all of my files available to you, or anyone designated by you for inspection, and to furnish to them any information which I possess in this regard.

Sincerely,

Richard S. Holland

Dear Governor Godwin:

I have just read the newspaper article appearing in the Norfolk paper of January 7th, 1967 quoting from the letter of Senator Henry Howell to you. In this letter Senator Howell raises the question of conflict of interest by attorneys representing the Highway Department.

This firm has represented the Virginia Department of Highways in this area for more than forty years, and I can say without reservation that we have never participated in or condoned any act in dealing with the Highway Department which tended to its prejudice or which was not in its best interest.

We have always been jealous of the rights of this client and given our utmost in its interest.

Our records are open for inspection by you or anyone designated by you and we would be glad to furnish to them any information concerning any transaction in which this office has been engaged which would involve the Highway Department.

Most sincerely yours,
Edwin C. Kellam

Penny Pinchers Profit By Pinching Old Coins

"I found a penny that was worth 40 cents. I found out about the penny in a book. Then I was hooked."

That's the way Ray Pritchard, a Norfolk police sergeant became a coin collector and eventually a successful coin dealer in Virginia Beach.

There are about 250 members of a coin club in Norfolk, many of whom live in Virginia Beach, according to Pritchard.

"But for every coin collector who belongs to a club, there are about 50 who do not. For most, coin collecting is just a hobby," said Pritchard.

Numismatists (that's coin collectors) fall into two separate categories.

One group buys or searches for valuable coins with the intent of compiling an impressive collection and holding one to it as a hobby.

The second group is made up of investors who buy or search for the valuable coins with the intent of holding on to them only until the value increases enough for them to be sold or traded at a profit.

"There are a lot more people who collect old money as a hobby," said Pritchard. "In fact, there are few families who don't have a few old coins or bills lying around the house."

Coin collecting is quite serious to many people. There is even a worldwide tabloid weekly newspaper for and about numismatists and the numismatic field. Last week's edition had 80 pages.

"You don't have to be a rich man to enjoy coin collecting," said Pritchard. Many of us go to banks and vending companies and get bags of coins. We search for valuable coins and return the rest to the banks."

Pritchard suggested that anyone interested in becoming a coin collector get a book telling the value of individual coins, then start watching their change in any store.

"I know a fellow who got a penny worth $200 in his change at a store the other day," he said.

Pritchard travels around now to the coin show and auctions nationwide and has two coin shops. One is located at 4760 Virginia Beach Blvd. in Virginia Beach.

He added that proof sets, which used to be available to collectors from a U. S. mint are no longer being made, and that they are becoming more valuable.

"Speculators are holding a lot of coins that are not so old in case the price goes up. They have more silver in them than the new ones," said Pritchard.

Pritchard cited a case in point where coins are concerned. He said that a man who invested $6,000 in A T & T in 1954 would have accrued $19,000 by now, but that the same man bought $6,000 worth of 1950 Denver-minted pennies in 1954, the investment would total $1,125,000 today. "I've know a lot of people who have made a lot of money collecting coins," he said. "It's all in knowing what to look for."

JIM MALOFF, SERVICEMAN STATIONED IN VIRGINIA BEACH, BROWSES THROUGH THE VAST COLLECTION OF COINS AVAILABLE. MALOFF, WHO LIVES IN PEMBROKE MANOR NEAR THE SHOP IS AN AMATEUR COLLECTOR, BUT HAS SPENT MANY YEARS AT HIS HOBBY.

Have a close look at that small change tonight when you toss it on the dresser or empty that purse. You could be carrying around a fortune.

Ice Cream, Not Age Interests Woman 100

How many 100-year-old women do you know who have a craving for ice cream, collard greens and raw onions?

Mrs. Corinne Moore, a resident of Liberty House Nursing Home since it opened, is looking forward to her 101st birthday May 10. She was born in Churchill, Miss., near Natchez.

When asked about her age, she replied, "I feel it. Yes, I do." Nurses report that she is in good health and taking no medication. They take her out of her wheelchair for daily walks.

Mrs. Moore came to the Tidewater area as a bride. "Marriage was the most important thing in my life," she said. Her husband, she said, was in the insurance business.

MRS. MOORE

She said that although her father did not fight in the Civil War he did furnish supplies to the Confederate army. She was the oldest of one boy and three girls in her family.

A mixup in food trays one day provided her with a diet more to her liking. At first she was eating a soft diet—baby food. One day she received a regular tray and finished it all. Since then she has been getting a regular diet.

"The food is different from what I thought it would be," said Mrs. Moore. "It's very good."

Mrs. Moore, who has four great-grandchildren, said she doesn't expect a birthday party in May and seems to find nothing extraordinary in having lived 100 years.

The Flap Over Pantsuits

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

Women do, too, wear pantsuits, claims traveler June White. As a matter of fact, she writes, so many were being worn to nightclubs and evening spots in London that a survey was conducted among owners and managers concerning their attitude toward the pantsuited guests. The survey revealed a sort of we-can't-lick-'em reaction. While they didn't particularly approve, they decided they had to go along with the women and their fashion fads!

MRS. WHITE

Mrs. White, with three of her four children, left in September for a 10-month European tour. Of European fashions generally, she had this to say: "In England, miniskirts are the most extreme we've seen anywhere. Really very unattractive, especially when worn with extreme accessories. "Shops in London have the most luscious formal wear. I understand there's a great need for it there. Strangely enough, the places you'd expect to see formal wear you don't. For instance, in none of the large cities did I see people really dressed at the theater or the opera.

"Gold and silver dresses, suits, coats, stockings, shoes... designed in all types of material from lame to leather, knits, jerseys, even plastic.

"Boots...the assortment and styles are great. They're worn by everyone under 50.

The Whites, now skiing in Austria, will continue their trek on the Continent, heading soon for Zurich, Rome and Madrid.

Meanwhile, back at the Beach, the bills tell me it's January while the ads tell me it's sale time.

Why does January have to be sale time?

To me, a sale is one of the greatest feats merchants perform: a bargain table a thing of sheer beauty. The higher and more cluttered it is, the more delighted I am. And if a crowd gathers, it becomes positively exhilarating.

But really! Sales in January? Who has money now? Knowing this, as they surely must, wouldn't you think merchants would be ashamed to tempt us after all our reckless living in December? I would. Furthermore, I would think they'd be doubly ashamed to lure us with little teasers like those 10 or 15 percenters?

A 10 or even a 15 percenter merits little more than a look in the window; a third off calls for maybe a walk through... but a hearty 50 percenter would bring the true-blue bargain-hunt woman to the store with fire in her eyes and cash up her coat sleeve.

Who cares if the coat sleeve has seen better days? If the poorhouse is just around the next corner, let us at least go out in a blaze of glory, proudly clutching a dazzling 50 percent off to our thread-bare bosom....

They might even say, "There, by gum goes a woman REALLY on the move."

Happenings!

EDWARD HOFHEIMER

....a Hunt Club happening....one where fashion interest centered more on the males than the females: their splendid scarlet coats outshone even the Christmas tree.

Cool was the night... warm was the food... and merry were the guests, many of whom had taken to the trails earlier in the day.

Five p.m. found them jockeying for positions near the grand old house's fireplaces... and the bar nearby... stocked and staffed, ready to warm the chilled riders.

....Nearby, too, a groaning board, sagging under the weight of 80 pounds of rare roast beef, pans and pans of spicy, hot potatoes, fresh green beans, a best-ever Caesar salad.... a great feast put together by Reva Keesley... wife of one of the instigators of it all.

The Princess Anne Hunt Club, with its gentlemen riders.... its handsome old club house.... its yard full of stately trees.... the scene of a spirited New Year's social.... a lively happening.

The Women Students: What Are They Up To?

LIZ WOOD

If the big breakthrough of women into the formerly male-dominated working world has caused a flurry of excitement among early crusaders of the cause, it apparently has gone almost unnoticed among their college-age daughters.

The school set now preparing to take up where their mothers left off, while enthusiastically pursuing the more sophisticated areas of study, regard it not as the giant step forward their mothers do, but instead as one to be taken in stride, almost as a matter of course.

"There are more women in the math field today, but they aren't given any special favors or particular encouragement," is the way Cheryl Marshall, 21, explains the lot of today's female college student.

A senior at William and Mary, Cheryl will graduate with a degree in chemistry; she plans to teach.

"I've always wanted to teach... the toss-up was not teaching as opposed to other things, but rather a toss-up between teaching English or teaching chemistry.

"I could go into research, be a technician or work in a lab, but I want to teach in high school.

"No area is limited to men only. If the woman is qualified, she's in, and while the school may not give her any special encouragement, they will help her work it out. It is up to the women themselves. Ability is what matters. Only four girls will graduate with me as chemistry majors.

"Any time we've had lecturers, they've stressed the great need for women, particularly in sciences. If the ability is there, the field is wide open."

Perry Harschultz, a 19-year-old freshman at Old Dominion, though undecided now on specialization, has definitely narrowed the field to medicine; to accomplish this, she said, will take 11 years.

"I wish I were through with it so I could feel I've accomplished something. I've always wanted a career.

"My father started to go into medicine... and he talked to me about it. Then I worked for a woman doctor. She told me there were many women doctors.

"But all my friends are getting married. I feel like an old maid, but I sure don't want to get married now."

Susan Byrd, 18, goes to Tennessee Tech. A graduate of Cox, she is in her freshman year, learning to be a pre-medical technician. She plans to make a change, however, as soon as she returns from the Christmas holiday.

"I'm going into secondary education, hoping to be a biology teacher. Chemistry I found a little too hard."

Her classes, she said, are about equally divided between the sexes: there are just as many men as women.

Not so with Carol West, who's a freshman at all-female Radford. She's in business administration.

"I didn't want to become just another secretary. I wanted to be something better, perhaps manage an office. Right now my courses are basic, but I'll be taking business management and business math, courses like that."

At the University of South Florida in Tampa, there are three boys to every girl. Even at that, though, more men than women major in psychology, said Liz Wood.

"I've found a lot of boys but very few girls who major in it. One of the teachers told me not to bother with it at all if I couldn't handle math, and I can't. But I went ahead with it anyway. I just got my grades, and I did a lot better than I've expected."

Liz, 18, graduated from Kellam. She worked in the guidance office there, saw most of the college brochures as they came in and liked what Florida had to offer.

Of psychology she said: "It's a man's field, and to practice, which I want to do, I need a doctorate, which means eight years in school."

feels that women are nosier and therefore make better news reporters than men. Dyan agrees with him.

She's a communications major, which encompasses all phases of news media. Her plans specifically are for television work, perhaps as a television correspondent.

Dyan feels that the news field is attracting more and more women every year. "There are a lot more female news commentators today than there used to be."

"I've always wanted to write, ever since I was in the eighth grade. I guess I had a feel for it... all my high school teachers thought so... they all encouraged me to go into journalism."

Like her sister students here at the Beach, Dyan doesn't regard her plans to be a traveling television correspondent as anything particularly sensational, trend-setting or even newsworthy.

She agrees with Cheryl. "If the ability is there, the field is wide open."

Mrs. Leroy Ober on Program

'Tell No Man' Reviewed at Y

"There are many happenings in the life of the main character Hank Gavin in Adela Rogers St. John's new novel, 'Tell No Man'. These events change him from an investment broker of charm, prestige and affluence to a minister whose life became the epitome of service to others and unwavering dedication to his new job."

Mrs. Leroy Ober, reviewing the book for Y.W.C.A. members and guests in the First Presbyterian Church, discussed the writer's background, the "sometimes shocking and modernly glib language" of the book and brought the characters alive.

Miss Rogers dedicated her book to 12 sports writers, each of whom had died (as had she) from the depths of despair and defeat into a full life of "rooted relationship with life and love, but only after pain and sorrow."

Mrs. Elmer Tarrall is chairman of the Book Review Committee; Mrs. L. C. Brennan, Mrs. R. H. Farmer, Mrs. John Frost, Mrs. G. R. Blosser and Mrs. Joseph Crawford acted as hostesses at the coffee hour that preceded the review.

Vote Recorder Being Considered by City

The City of Virginia Beach is considering using a low-cost, briefcase-like device to record votes in elections.

There is just one hitch: Under present laws, the device—a Selscor 240 Vote Recorder—may not be legal. This shortcoming, however, could easily be remedied by introduction at the 1968 General Assembly of legislation to make it legal.

The Vote Recorder has advantages over both voting machines and ballots. It costs $180 to a voting machine's approximately $1,800. And it counts votes far faster than election officials can count ballots.

There are other advantages such as ease of storing. It weighs only 11 pounds.

"We could buy a new one of these for what repairs would cost to a voting machine," said Roger Scott, assistant city manager. Scott and the city electoral board have been studying the vote recorder and election laws. The vote recorder Scott received on trial from the Selscor Company, Tulsa, Okla., is of fiberboard and the ultimate in simplicity.

To place it in use, election officials merely have to open it and set it on a table in a polling place.

The voter is then handed a computer card which he inserts in the vote recorder. The names of candidates appear opposite pre-scored holes in the computer card. The voter uses a stylus or pencil to punch a hole opposite the candidate he favors.

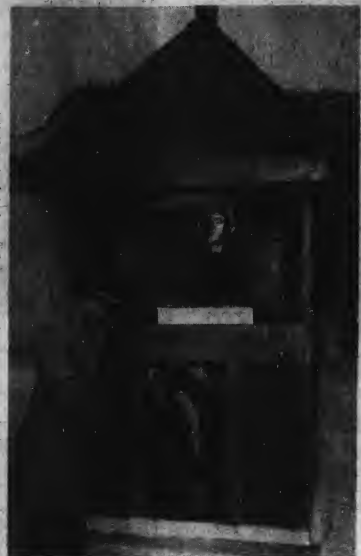

The card is removed, put in an envelope and put in the ballot box.

When the polls close, all punched cards are taken to the city's IBM machine, fed through and the results of the election are known in a couple of hours.

Provisions are also made on the recorder for write-in votes. If the voter inadvertently mutilates a card he can ask for and receive another one.

The Selscor company recommends one vote recorder for every 100 voters. Virginia Beach would need about 150 under this formula. The Selscor company would program the city's computer for the punch cards.

At present, voting machines are used only in Virginia Beach Borough. Printed ballots are used in the other boroughs.

Green-clad troops emerge from the swampland and approach the straw-thatched village. Villagers in black pajamas who are tilling the soil look up.

A shot rings out. The troops hit the dirt and work closer, herding the villagers through the barbed-wire enclosure to be searched and interrogated.

A hidden panel on a religious shrine opens silently and another shot rings out. A Trooper falls.

Nope, Fort Story, where a Vietnamese village is being built to train officers and men in the tricks of the Viet Cong.

The village is almost 90 percent complete but is being held up for want of materials.

"Maybe some of your readers can help us," said Lt. Col. Robert J. Warner, acting public information officer. "We need some straw."

The straw will be used as roofing for the Vietnamese buildings and the sides will be covered with burlap to give the structures authenticity.

Also authentic are the underground tunnels much favored by the Viet Cong. (The "mayor" of the village at Fort Story is a Viet Cong. He snipes at the advancing American troops from outside the compound, then crawls quickly through a tunnel, emerging through a trapdoor underneath his desk. The soldiers find him there, smiling blandly and bowing deeply. Part of the training is for the soldiers to determine who is friend and who is foe.)

The village contains the mayor's office, a shrine, pig pen, various houses, a tavern, store, and a host of bobby traps. (Beneath the counterpane of a bed in one house are deadly spikes. Underneath the bed lurks a Viet Cong with a long knife.)

GI Loans To Expire

World War II veterans have about seven months left to take advantage of G.I. guaranteed or insured loans. July 25, 1967 is the deadline.

Eligibility for World War II veterans is determined by a formula which adds 10 years to the date of their last discharge plus one year for each 90 days of service. The eligibility for many has already expired, but the July 25, 1967 date is the cutoff for all other World War II veterans. Veterans who were discharged for a service-connected disability and the widows of such veterans will be eligible up to the July 25, 1967 deadline.

For veterans of the Korean Conflict the formula for determining G.I. loan eligibility is the same as for veterans of World War II. However, the Korean Conflict entitlement did not begin to expire until January 31, 1965 and the final deadline is January 31, 1975. Eligibility for Post-Korean veterans under the new G.I. Bill does not begin to expire until 1976.

itez who drew on the memories of several Vietnamese returnees at Fort Story for details. "It didn't cost a penny," said Colonel Warner. "Just manpower."

When the soldiers move through the village and successfully ferret out all the Viet Cong and hidden arms they take their places on a nearby grandstand and watch the next group of soldiers enter the village.

The parts of the Vietnamese, of course, are played by Fort Story men who are dressed in black pajamas. Some wear false beards.

The lessons learned at make-believe may save the lives of many soldiers when they face the real thing in Southeast Asia.

Haygood Aims for Fall Opening Littleton Becomes HEW Approves Fred Arthur District President Liberty House Retires

Virginia Beach will soon have another large shopping center, this one on Independence Boulevard at Haygood Road.

Construction on the $3 million colonial-design Haygood Shopping Center began Tuesday, and the first stores are expected to be occupied by early fall.

The center is situated on a 30-acre site, and leases were being closed with about 35 stores to include a major food store, drug store, variety store and several well-known specialty shops.

Haygood Shopping Center is being developed by Lee A. Gifford, who has also developed a number of other areas of Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

A major feature of the new facility will be a garden court which will divide the store areas. The smaller stores will face the court, which will be planted with shrubbery and trees. The court will also have covered sidewalks.

Gifford said the court will be large enough and private enough for use by civic meetings and the like.

THIS SIGN WILL BE REPLACED BY A MODERN SHOPPING CENTER SOON.

Skating Resumes At Civic Center

Roller skating has resumed on Saturday and Sunday afternoons at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center, according to Sam Scott, center director.

Hours are 1-4 p.m. For any further information about skating, call 428-8000.

The Liberty House Nursing Home at 340 Lynn Shores Drive has received the accreditation of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of the Social Security Administration for participation as an extended care facility under the Health Insurance Benefits Program for the Aged.

The acceptance by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare of the Social Security Administration is in compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the requirements thereof.

Princess Anne Country Club's Fred Arthur has retired after almost two decades of service.

A presentation of a silver cordial service inscribed "To Fred Arthur with Appreciation The Princess Anne Country Club 1966" was made by D. Conrad Little, chairman of the house committee. In addition, various other gifts from fellow employees and members were tended to Fred on his retiring day, December 31, 1966.

In recent years, Fred had earned the post of Head Bartender and Captain of the new Men's Lounge.

Arthur's plans for the future include part-time employment with Bratten Pontiac, as well as attention to an apartment that he owns.

Wilson Joins WVAB Staff

D. E. (Don) Wilson has joined the staff of Radio Station WVAE as an account executive, according to station manager, Allan G. McLellan.

Wilson was formerly District Manager of O'Ryan and Batchelder in Norfolk. All bus advertising for Virginia Transit Company in Norfolk, the Elizabeth River Tunnel Commission, Portsmouth Bus Company and for the bus companies in Newport News and Hampton came under the jurisdiction of Wilson.

"We are happy to have been able to have a man of the caliber of Mr. Wilson to join our staff," said McLellan. "And we look forward to a long and prosperous association."

Wilson, who is originally from Peoria, Ill., came to Virginia Beach 11 years ago as an avid fresh water fisherman, but has made the change to salt water fishing easily.

"At first I didn't like it, but now I like salt water fishing as much as I did fresh water," said Wilson.

He is also a staff officer of the Fifth District of the Coast Guard Auxiliary in charge of public relations. From 1964 to 1966 he was commander of Flotilla 57 in Virginia Beach. He has been a member of the Virginia

Beach Coast Guard Auxiliary since 1958.

Wilson lives with his wife, Dorothy, a registered nurse, and his daughter, Donna, in Lynnhaven Colony.

"It is a real challenge to be associated with a new and progressive organization such as WVAB," he said. "I look forward to its tremendous growth in the future."

Letters to Cahill

Mr. Cahill,

In regard to your column of Thursday, January 5; Newspaper readers, being what they are, have few crosses to bear. A lot of grips and vexations, but few crosses. But in every apple barrel there's a rotten apple, and ours happens to be uninformed editors.

In your "grand slam" against the agonies of Boy Scouting in the world today (just when were you stuck at Second Class?), you made quite a few statements that could have used some backing up.

I'm not a Boy Scout, I'm not even a boy, but my brother is a Star Scout and my Father helps run a troop and I've been rudely awakened many a Saturday morning by the sound of a Krispy Kreme truck screeching to a halt to deliver its wares. 6:00, mind you, and I'm not complaining, because every time I go downstairs I find some nice, warm, soft doughnuts, waiting for me. It's my opinion that hard doughnuts are saved for people with hard heads.

Don't think that just because doughnuts are sold in this troop that the boys are lax and/or soft - far from it. The money they raise goes towards tents, knives, axes, and so on. Doughnuts raise a lot of money in a short time, leaving them free to enjoy the wild untamed jungles of Va. Beach.

Selling rattlesnake skins and crossbows may be your idea of fun, but to my thinking and apparently that of all the neighbors around here, doughnuts taste better.

I'll close my letter with a suggestion from my very disgruntled family; shrunken heads might sell - will you be the first to volunteer yours?

Sincerely,

Leslie A. Pickering

Mr. Carl Cahill
VIRGINIA BEACH SUN
Laskin Road
Virginia Beach, Virginia

Dear Mr. Cahill:

I am more than disillusioned at a man in your position of communicating with the public, writing such a distorted view of Scouting as appeared January 5th in the Virginia Beach Sun. It's evident you don't know anything about Scouting but it bothers me that some of our young men developing an interest in becoming Boy Scouts may not realize this. A person in your position could have aided many young men if you had made the effort to publish a realistic view by getting out and associating with Scouts, Scout Leaders and the total program.

Scouts still have Camporees....major ones. They also swing along through the fields with packs on their backs, and they attend Junior Leader Training Courses, weekend camping, summer camps, special events, canoe trips and other activities conducted outdoors. They use what they have learned in Scouting....knot tying, cooking, map reading....camping.

You criticized selling doughnuts. Tents aren't free; neither can most boys afford to buy a complete camping outfit for their own personal use. Fund raising projects are necessary. Even with donations from organizations and individuals, most units constantly struggle to meet expenses.

Merit badges? Yes, a Scout can earn a merit badge for Salesmanship. He can also earn badges for Public Speaking, Oceanography, Life Saving, Camping Cooking, Citizenship in the Home, Soil and Water Conservation, Citizenship in the Nation, and dozens and dozens of others....even Journalism. Many are required if the young Scout is to move up in the Scout ranks. Twenty-one particular merit badges are among the requirements for Eagle Scout....twenty-one particular badges, not just any twenty-one. These are the badges that help develop within a boy what Scouting stands for in the first place. Scouting makes good citizens, good Americans. These young men are the future of this country and you should thank God that we have boys in this country, and all across the world, that are interested in what the Boy Scouts of America stand for.

The Scout Oath stresses duty to God and country, duty to others and finally, duty to yourself. If it takes selling doughnuts to help support a program that encourages self-development along these lines, then I am all for it. Scouting is filled with requirements, challenges and adventure. That's why there are 481 Scout units in Tidewater, consisting of more than 13,000 Scouts of all ages.

Sutton Announces For City Sergeant

The long-awaited announcement of an Organization candidate for City Sergeant has finally come.

Paul Sutton, another political newcomer, has received the backing of the dominant Democratic organization here for the job now held by John Marr. Marr had earlier said he would run for re-election, but there had been wide speculation that he would not receive political backing from the Organization in his bid.

Sutton's announcement with the blessing of the Organization, confirms the speculation.

Sutton, a long-time supporter of the Organization, operates a service station on Virginia Beach Boulevard. He is also a Justice of the Peace and a member of the Virginia Beach Draft Board.

Although no formal announcement has been made, a ticket to be called the Administration ticket, should emerge within the near future, now that Sutton's announcement completes the slate of those with Organization backing.

With the exception of Tom Mapp, who is running for re-election to the job of Commissioner of Revenue, all other candidates with Organization backing have opposition.

He also is expected to have an opponent before the April filing deadline for the July Democratic primary.

CYNTHIA HERSBERGER SAYS SHE SPENDS "MOST OF HER TIME" IN THE MUSIC ROOM AT PRINCESS ANNE HIGH SCHOOL.

ONE OF THE FEW TIMES DURING THE DAY THAT CYNTHIA HERSBERGER HAS TIME FOR A BREAK.

Chaperones Praise Cindy

To Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clemons of Birchwood Gardens, Cynthia Hersberger's victory in Roanoke was not an easily won one.

"Competition this year was the keenest I've ever seen.... by far the best pageant ever staged," said Clemons. Clemons and his wife Barbara, have, for the past four years, chaperoned the Bayside-Princess Anne Jaycees' entry in the pageant.

"We naturally wanted her to win, and we are very happy and satisfied that she did so well."

"She seemed to have great appeal to the audience. Her talent selection, a piano solo, was the only one that won numerous ovations from the audience."

"One thing most people don't know is that we as spectators, see only 50 percent of the judging. Making up the other 50 percent is the contestant's scholastic achievement based on high school transcript and the judges' interviews."

"She was certainly a winner; she's a fine, outstanding Christian girl. We call our representative to the pageant our First Lady of youth. Cindy fits the bill right to a T," Clemons added.

Even the dotting Hersberger family had second thoughts on the whole thing when they saw Cindy's competition in Roanoke, said Mrs. Lucille Doughty, an aunt.

"Our hopes were for the top spot, but after we arrived and saw the great talent, we were worried. The girl from New River Valley, for instance, did the most graceful ballet I've ever seen. They were all marvelous."

"When she came in second runner-up, it was just too much. It was the most exciting thing imaginable. I thought I was going to pass out."

"To Cindy, it was just like any other every-day event. She just takes it in her stride," Mrs. Doughty said.

Long-Time Controversy to End?

The end of the rambling road to rightful representation may be in sight.

Apportionment of the Virginia Beach City Council has long been under attack. Many of the reasons for attack and the legal maneuverings have been obscured by time and more important current events.

Now the nation's highest court, the U. S. Supreme Court, says it will hear arguments in the matter. It will merely answer jurisdictional and procedural questions, but may not answer directly the merits of the plan or any other plan. Review, however, should finally end the matter once and for all.

One side or the other is not going to be happy with the eventual outcome, but at least a matter which has occupied a lot of people over a long period of time and has cost a considerable amount of money will have been brought to a legal conclusion.

When Princess Anne County and Virginia Beach consolidated, the old board of supervisors of the county and the old city council were merely combined, out of sheer expediency. But a provision was entered into the charter that would have provided for eventual, equitable apportionment.

A citizen group almost immediately challenged the setup, and won their case through state courts and federal courts. Vir-

Local Contest Winner Thrives on Activity

Although she didn't get to bed until 2 a.m. Sunday and didn't get home to Virginia Beach until 8:30 that night, Cynthia Hersberger appeared bright and still smiling at Princess Anne High School Monday morning.

Cindy, a tall, slender and pretty brown-eyed brunette, was named second runner-up in the Miss Junior Miss of Virginia contest last weekend in Roanoke.

"My feet are still swollen," she explained. "This morning I got up and just automatically reached for my heels and gloves."

"We had to wear them everywhere. Most of the contestants had to go out and buy hats too."

But Cynthia's activities have just begun. A member of the Princess Anne High School Madrigal Singers, the poised 18-year-old will perform with them tomorrow night. Then she will appear as a finalist in the Key Club Sweetheart contest at Norview High School Saturday night. She is the P. A. Key Club Sweetheart.

Next on her agenda is the crowning of the new Miss Princess Anne (yearbook queen) in February. She is the 1966 title holder, in between she is at the disposal of the Jaycees whenever they need her to put in an appearance.

Cindy said that before the finals of the contest in Roanoke she was nervous but that after they started she just didn't have time.

"We rehearsed from 10:30 a.m. until 6 p.m. Friday," she said. "We went back to the hotel, but we had to report to the lobby at seven and return to the pageant. And above all keep up our smiles."

"The largest cheering section next to Roanoke," she said that about 40 relatives and friends accompanied her.

Her fellow students have been just wonderful, Cindy said. "You would think I won, I got a telegram from the kids I eat lunch with right before the talent contest."

Cynthia, an honor roll senior at Princess Anne, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hersberger Jr., of 774 East Sparrow Road. Her future plans call for two years at Old Dominion College then transferring to the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music.

"I'd like to teach and perform too," she said, "and possibly open a private studio." She currently teaches piano in her home after school. Besides the Madrigal Singers, she has sung with the All-State Chorus for two years.

Another ambition is to enter the Miss Virginia Beach contest in a couple of years.

Although she dates frequently (when she has time), Cindy does not believe in going steady.

13th Is Lucky For Bloodmobile

Friday, the 13th turned out to be a very lucky day for the Red Cross in Virginia Beach.

A total of 115 persons showed up at Pembroke Mall Shopping Center to give blood. Of that number, 100 were accepted to give a pint of blood.

"This is the largest turnout in many years," said Mrs. Lois Nelson, Chairman of the blood program of the Virginia Beach chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. Nelson said that the combined efforts of the news media was responsible for the large number of people who were donors.

"Pembroke Mall has really shown itself as the heart of Virginia Beach," said Mrs. Nelson.

Second Medical Building Slated

Construction of a medical-dental complex across the street from Virginia Beach General Hospital is expected to start this week.

It's the second medical center to be announced for Virginia Beach in as many weeks. The other will also be located on First Colonial Road near the General Hospital.

The medical-dental complex will be called the Professional Center and will represent a total investment of about $350,000. The owners are Murray and Richard Walzner, of Norfolk, owners of Murray Drug Company.

The complex will be built in two sections. The contract for construction of section one has been awarded to F. Wayne McLuskey, Jr., of M&S Construction Company.

The first section should be completed by June. Architects are Brundage, Cohen, Holton and Kroskin, AIA, of Norfolk. There will be 15 suites in section one, each containing 900 square feet. There will be no commercial stores on the premises.

The Professional Center will be managed by Dave Miller Realty, Inc., of Virginia Beach through its agent, Harry Evans.

Dedications Tomorrow

General Booth Boulevard, which extends from the foot of Pacific Avenue to Oceana Blvd. at Dam Neck Road, will be formally opened to traffic after brief ribbon-cutting ceremonies.

That ceremony takes place at 11:30. Then the city and state officials, as well as invited guests travel to Shore Drive for another ribbon-cutting ceremony at the recently-opened second span of Lesner Bridge at 12:30.

The two ceremonies will be followed by a luncheon at the Black Angus Restaurant at 1:30 for nearly 100 guests.

Wesleyan Grows

Construction of a library is expected to be given top priority for 1967 at Virginia Wesleyan College, according to President Lambuth M. Clarke.

An increase in enrollment from the present 75 freshmen to 175 freshmen and sophomores is also anticipated by September with the addition of sophomore courses of study. One new faculty member will probably be added to offer the sophomore level course in Biblical literature.

Plans outlined by the Board of Trustees call for an increase in enrollment of 100 students each year over the next 10 years toward a projected overall enrollment of 1200.

Another Astronaut for Beach?

PFC. SURLIS

BY JOE LOWENTHAL

Next, wait about 10 years. We'll probably be running his picture and a story about him again.... when he is named one of America's newest astronauts.

Pfc. Robert B. Surlis, Jr., whose home is in Princess Anne Plaza, wants to be an astronaut, and he is well on his way toward qualifying.

The 21-year old Marine attended Old Dominion College for two and one-half years studying engineering, with an emphasis on aerospace engineering. Unfortunately he was forced to drop out of school to work. That made him eligible for the draft, and he was almost drafted. Just hours before he was to be called Virginia Beach Marine recruiter, Sgt. Chris Carlisle signed Surlis up and packed him off to Parris Island on Oct. 15, 1966.

Carlisle says, "He did me proud down there."

That could prove to be the understatement of the year. Surlis was chosen as the outstanding recruit in his boot camp training platoon of more than 100 men and was promoted to Private First Class as soon as he finished his training.

During the regular battery of tests given to all new servicemen Surlis scored top scores, and an opportunity to take another test.

The other test, which Surlis passed with flying colors, was the Officer Candidate School qualification test.

Surlis plans to make the Marine Corps his career and it's a good thing. The Marine Corps has plans for Surlis. First he will spend ten weeks at Quantico, Va., in the Officer Candidate School. With that behind him, he will be commissioned a Second Lieutenant and be sent to Pensacola, Fla., for 18 months of flight training.

He has also been guaranteed the opportunity to return to the college of his choice while still in the Marine Corps to get his degree and even a post-graduate degree.

"While I'm there, I'll be able to hang up my uniform and just be a regular college student," said Surlis. "Of course to get this opportunity, I'll have to sign up for two years for each year of college. But I'd already planned to spend at least 20 years in the Marine Corps anyway."

His immediate plans after all this are to become a Marine test pilot. The Marine Corps also has a school for that and Surlis wants to attend.

Flying is not new to him, however. He already has about 200 hours flying time to his credit, and has completed all requirements for a commercial pilot's license.

"I began flying lessons while I was in high school," he said. "I worked part-time in a grocery store to pay for the lessons."

He was also in the Air Scouts, and attained Eagle Scout rank. Surlis is a member of the Norfolk Parachute Club and has made 15 jumps. He wants to attend the Marine jump school too.

"I was scared to death on that second jump," he said. "On the first one I didn't know what to expect, and I wasn't so scared. After that second one, they get easier though."

Besides all this Surlis is an avid physical fitness buff, and holds a brown belt from the Norfolk Judo Club.

"The primary reason I went in the Marines," he said, "was because of all the educational opportunities offered." He hopes to take advantage of as many of them as possible leading toward his ultimate goal.

And that ultimate goal is to be an astronaut.

Along with all of his other qualifications, Surlis has a desire to learn and enthusiasm that is hard to beat.

Remember the name.... Robert Surlis, of Virginia Beach. He is going to be an astronaut.

Changes Due in Local Cemeteries Step Taken

There will be some changes made in Virginia Beach's two private cemeteries, Princess Anne Memorial Park and Rosewood Memorial Park.

The changes will come about because of new ownership and a host of ideas from the new owner.

Charles C. Kirkpatrick, Jr., is the new president of the two corporations which own and operate the cemeteries.

He came to Virginia Beach with his family from Northern Virginia, where he was vice-president in charge of sales at Fort Lincoln Cemetery, one of the largest in the nation.

Kirkpatrick currently makes his home in Birdneck Village Apartments in Virginia Beach. Both Princess Anne and Rosewood are memorial parks, and, as such, differ from the ordinary cemetery. No stone tombstones are allowed for individual graves or families. Bronze plaques of several sizes, flush with the ground, mark each grave. In each large area there is a large memorial usually of granite, depicting a religious scene. Shrubbery and flowers complete the memorial park.

Kirkpatrick plans to alter that concept slightly. He plans to open up unused sections of the two cemeteries for the regular family plot type graves, allowing stone monuments.

CHARLES KIRKPATRICK

"The monumental area will be completely divided from the bronze memorial section," said Kirkpatrick. "And we will have rigid controls on the type of monument to be erected. Everyone must meet our standards."

Kirkpatrick noted that many cemeteries, especially those owned and operated by municipalities can become eyesores, because of no restriction on the size and type of monuments.

Future care of cemeteries is always a great concern, according to Kirkpatrick, but he noted that is now governed by law.

"A trust fund is set up for future care," he said. "Ten per cent of the cost of every memorial goes to the fund."

Kirkpatrick said he was a firm believer in purchasing a burial plot before it is needed.

"A good cemetery takes five years to build and landscape," he added. "So about 80 to 85 per cent of the land is sold to families before beginning to build."

The big problem of the future is going to be land, according to Kirkpatrick. He suggested that more and more cremations will take place, and that more large mausoleums and partially above ground garden crypts.

Princess Anne Memorial Park already has a crematorium.

Burial with one or more graves on top of the other is already being done in many large cities and in most government cemeteries.

"We like to sell a plot for only the husband and wife," said Kirkpatrick. "If an unmarried child must be buried there, we give the space free. But ordinarily children leave home and are not necessarily buried with their parents."

Kirkpatrick, a director of the National Association of Cemeteries, noted that Rosewood is now the second largest privately owned place of interment in Tidewater.

Toward Marina

City Council, by approving an engineering study for the two planned jetties at Rudee Inlet, has moved yet another step toward building a giant boating complex on the south end of Virginia Beach.

In September the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers made public plans for an extension to the existing stone jetty at Rudee Inlet and the construction of a similar one on the opposite side of the waterway.

At that time notice was sent to shipping interests, property owners near the inlet and all public navigation agencies. Any opposition to the jetties or any part of the plan had to be received by the Engineers early in October.

No consequential opposition was forthcoming, and the engineering study was finally turned over to City Council for formal approval.

The study was being prepared for the now-defunct Rudee Inlet Authority, but City Council has recently taken over all functions of the Authority.

The jetties are being called a necessity if Rudee Inlet is to be developed as a boating and marina complex. Plans are moving ahead to create a major marine facility on the site within the foreseeable future.

The permit which is expected to be issued shortly for the jetty construction work was based solely on the effect of the jetties upon navigation.

Duties of Auxiliary Police Varied, Time-Consuming

The duties are varied (one man is stationed in the lobby of the Virginia Beach General Hospital to keep people from wandering into rooms before visiting hours) and time consuming (at least four hours a month) and sometimes distasteful (pulling injured people from wrecks.)

Chorus Picks "Patience"

"Patience," a musical by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be the next presentation of the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus, according to Director Charles Oliver.

It will be performed at the Virginia Beach Junior High School February 23-25. Disting is not fully completed in all male roles.

Anyone interested in joining the Civic Chorus may call the director at 428-4541. The chorus is currently meeting Wednesday evening at Callee Episcopal Church.

But members of the Virginia Beach Auxiliary Police consider it a community service. Formed in August 1960, the 100-man force functions principally in traffic control, parking problems, and crowd control, freeing regular police officers for more important duties.

"The only thing that doesn't parallel the regular police is the uniform," says Lt. Col. Donald T. Fantone, the group's administrative officer.

Training, procedures, power of arrest is the same.

"We have made arrests on a number of occasions but we try to have a regular policeman there," says Fantone.

Members are over 21 and under 65 years of age and have all been cleared by the FBI and the Virginia Beach Police Department.

"We have regular police training." This includes finger-print detection, public relations, court procedures. Currently, the men are qualifying with the .38 caliber revolver.

The monthly meetings are held at the Civil Defense-warehouse at London Bridge.

The auxiliaries also have two vehicles, donated by the Ocean Park and Chesapeake Beach fire departments. They are used to transport the men to their assignments and can also be used as ambulances.

Fantone, G. Dewey Simmons and James E. Lee were instrumental in forming the auxiliaries through Ivan D. Mapp who was at that time director of Civil Defense. William T. McFarland is chief of the force.

The 100 men are divided into five squads, each headed up by a captain. "We can get in touch with 100 men in 30 minutes," adds Fantone.

The men serve without pay and are required to attend 10 meetings a year. Each man must provide his gun and holster. The city pays for the uniforms. Last year the city got in return 9,000 man-hours worth $20,000.

The only other such force in the immediate area is in Newport News.

Postpone The Postponement

Virginia Beach needs a mini-housing code.... soon.

When it was first announced that a public hearing would be held on January 23 by City Council on the matter, we were pleased.

When that public hearing was postponed indefinitely by Council or until "several matters could be ironed out," we were displeased.

The controversy over the inspection section of the code is supposedly merely one of the culprits. City officials say the inspection procedure is perfectly harmless, but others disagreed. But this was one reason the public hearing was called off.

Whatever the other reasons for postponement are, we hope they can be cleared up immediately. A rapidly growing and rapidly maturing city such as Virginia Beach is already overdue for such a code.

In our city there are many slums, and many other areas rapidly becoming slums. A minimum housing code is a step in the correct direction. It will eliminate such existing or developing conditions.

The code is not a vehicle that would work a hardship on anyone interested in common decency and sanitary conditions. It would not work a hardship on any conscientious homeowner or landlord with an ounce of civic pride. It would not work a hardship on anyone interested in the best interests of Virginia Beach. On all others it would work a hardship.

We suggest that revised code be put before the public as soon as possible, and the differences worked out at a hearing. We do not feel our city can wait much longer for such an important matter to be resolved.

Jaycee Week

Virginia Beach is quite fortunate. In having two progressive and active Jaycee Chapters. The Virginia Beach Jaycees and the Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees sponsor outstanding civic projects throughout the year.

Besides honoring outstanding young men and other important citizens, the Jaycees take an active part in such events as Brotherhood Week, the Miss Virginia Beach pageant, the school bus road-e-a sanctioned industry promotion and a long list of other events.

This is National Jaycee Week, and is certainly an appropriate time for us to recognize the fine work done in Virginia Beach by both of our chapters.

We congratulate these young dedicated citizens on their civic pride and civic interest. Both chapters are important to the future of our city.

We support the work being done every day by the Virginia Beach and Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees and wish them well during this, their own week.

Say Something Soon, Mr. Warren

Now that the nation's highest court has finally decided to decide whether it has jurisdiction in local reapportionment matters, perhaps the Virginia Beach case can finally be resolved, after several years.

The long chain of events which was finally brought the matter to the U. S. Supreme Court will soon be settled one way or the other. The court has agreed to hear the Virginia Beach case even before it rules on jurisdiction in local affairs of this kind.

Actually we do not believe the federal courts, up to and including the U. S. Supreme Court, should have any say about the apportionment of a municipal government. We believe that should be entirely up to the states.

If the high court decides it has no say, then it is up to the state courts. Virginia courts have already deemed Virginia Beach's City Council apportionment to be just and legal.

If the high court decides it does not have jurisdiction it will be calling attention to the great amount of money spent by our city needlessly to fight the matter twice through federal courts.

On the other hand if the court does decide it can mess into local affairs, the present and equitable Virginia Beach apportionment should remain valid. So far only one court on the long journey to the Supreme Court has called the plan invalid.

In the event, however, that the plan should be thrown out, at least the citizens of Virginia Beach will have the knowledge that our city fathers fought for an idea that was considered best by them.

But regardless of the outcome, we hope that the high Court will have its say soon and get it all over with. The matter has been in the courts long enough and has caused enough hard feelings. Now it is time to end the controversy and to continue forward progress.

Adam Clayton Powell

The Congress of the United States grew in stature when it denied Adam Clayton Powell his seat in the House of Representatives until a thorough investigation of his affairs can be completed and until his contempt convictions are settled one way or the other.

The tight-knit fraternity finally proved it could publicly chastise one of its own.

In spite of the race issue which was bound to be raised, Congress accepted the criticism and did what it had to do.

Black man or white man, the image of our country could not survive long the arrogance and contempt of an Adam Clayton Powell.

GUNSMOKE

Roy Alphin, Advisor

President Johnson has named a Virginia Beach man to an important assignment. Roy Alphin, long a civic and business leader in Virginia Beach, has been named to a one-year term on the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council.

Alphin will help to shape the future safety of the auto industry, along with the 16 other members.

The advisory council is being looked to from all sides as a last-ditch attempt to stave off senseless death and destruction on our nation's highways and streets. Making automobiles safer could be a great part of the answer.

Roy Alphin is a member of our own City Planning Commission and the regional planning commission for Southeastern Virginia. He is a planner in other ways too. He is greatly interested in the future of this country, as well as the safety of the automobile.

We feel that a dedicated member of the automobile industry such as Roy Alphin is a real asset to the advisory council.

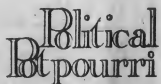

I Pledge Allegiance...

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

It still looks like two separate groups are shaping up for the July democratic primary elections here.

So for only the democratic organization seems to be presenting a solid front, but those in opposition appear to be moving closer and closer to a coalition all the time.

A couple of the opposition candidates may not play ball and will enter the primary as "Independents," but the rest should soon present a solid front of opposition.

Nomenclature is important. There is some talk that the Organization ticket may be known as the Administration ticket this time. Could have something to do with feelings toward all organized politics or with unwarranted connotations associated with the old name.

The opposition obviously cannot rest either. They cannot be called the Opposition ticket. That implies things they do not wish to imply and conjures up all kinds of misleading mental images.

Allegiance to the chosen ticket will be of prime importance to the candidates. How they arrived on their particular tickets and assumed allegiance to those tickets, especially in light of some past allegiances, makes an interesting study.

On the Organization ticket for Constitutional offices, Iva Mapp and John Fentress are "straight-line" candidates. They were with the Organization last year in the senatorial races and supported Byrd and Robertson in the primary. Newcomers Howard Merrill and Owen Pickett were Byrd-Spong supporters.

John Marr, 71-year old candidate for the job of City Sergeant was a Byrd-Robertson supporter at the last minute, after the rest of the Organization had already announced its allegiance.

Marr recently had trouble making up his mind about present allegiances, and the Organization is now supporting Paul Sutton for Marr's job. Sutton has always been an Organization supporter in past races.

The Organization slate for General Assembly seats is even more complicated. L. Charles Burlage was co-campaign manager of the Booth Senate campaign and was also a Spong supporter.

Newcomer Kenneth Whitehurst joined his City Councilman father as a Byrd-Robertson supporter. Incumbent State Senator William P. Kellan was also a Byrd-Robertson supporter.

Regardless of past allegiances, they have now joined forces under one unnamed banner and are taking on all comers.

The opposition candidates have even confused allegiances in their backgrounds, and their only common allegiance so far is opposition.

V. A. Etheridge, former Organization lieutenant and supporter, has become a member of the opposition in his bid for re-election. Last year, he supported Byrd feebly and was Spong's campaign manager in Virginia Beach.

Andre Evans, long an Organization supporter, wore Byrd and Robertson buttons during the primary race. So did Dick Absolom.

Ned Caton was Byrd's co-campaign manager in Virginia Beach and also gave lip service to the support of Robertson. He was a staunch member of the Organization at that time.

B. R. Middleton and Joseph A. Gawrys, were both Spong supporters. Their allegiance in the other Senate race is unknown.

Still all anyone can do is assume that two distinct tickets will emerge as the date for the primary nears.

A lot of allegiance has changed. The changes in many cases could have an important role in the outcome of this primary.

School Bus Hawk

In regards to Mrs. J. E.'s letter Jan. 5, I would like to make a few statements.

I have driven a bus for 10 yrs, and I know what it's like. Mr. Strickler has enough to do trying to keep the drivers from having accidents and the safety of the children, rather than getting half-hand information. Mrs. J. E. should get a job with the Transportation Dept. to spy on the buses.

Next time, Mrs. J. E., instead of seeing what color the driver is try and get the bus number. I feel sure if you had asked the driver if the city furnished the bus to shop, she or he would have told you.

If we are wrong Mr. Strickler doesn't care if the driver was red, yellow, black, white, or pink dot.

I wish Mrs. J. E. could be on Atlantic Ave. evenings around 4 p.m. to see what I have to go through trying to stop cars from going through my red light.

In December, I had stopped to discharge a student, and as he was crossing I saw a car coming too fast to stop, so I opened my side window and screamed. The student stopped to see why I was screaming and the car just missed him.

We bus drivers really catch H. from citizens like J. E. and road runners. Next time, Mrs. J. E., get the bus number not the color of the driver.

Bus drivers stop, look and listen.

J. E., the Hawk, is on the run To report you to the Sun She might run into you this time Trying to get your bus number.

The Virginia Beach Sun
May I congratulate you on the NEW LOOK the Sun has taken on in the past several issues have received. Have been a subscriber for several years and always enjoyed reading my issue each Thursday. But recently I anxiously look forward to each week's publication.

The entire format is a pleasure to behold. The news print, the pictures but best of all is seeing my old friend Carl Cahill back on the front page again. He afforded me many hours of pleasant reading years ago and I find he has not lost his touch for bringing out many a chuckle in his column. As old wine improves with age so does he, I consider The Sun most fortunate in having him on its staff.

Keep up the good work and continue to let us Virginia Beach citizens have the best and latest happenings that each week brings forth in our great city.

Distraught

Dear Editor:

The article appearing in the Virginia Beach Sun concerning pierced ears leaves us very distraught about the concern the Sun has for cities' female teenagers.

We think it was a very interesting article due to the fact that it explained the originality of pierced ears, and probably appealed to most teenage girls.

Today is Robert E. Lee's birthday.

We know, because we have a very southern calendar. For what it's worth there are six Robert E. Lee's in the Norfolk-Portsmouth-Chesapeake-Virginia Beach telephone book.

Three of them live in Virginia Beach.

In case you are thinking of calling up one of them to wish him a happy birthday, be sure you get the right one. The correct number is APpomatox 4.....!

In our opinion, the paragraphs pertaining to the home-method of piercing ears should not have been printed due to the fact that this will encourage more young girls to pierce their own ears.

We pierced our ears by the home method and also tried the self piercing earrings and found out the hard way that this causes a painful infection. We finally went to a doctor. Talking to him, we found out any piercing of ears should be done by a special device that is available to doctors for this purpose. We also learned that only doctors are qualified to pierce ears. It cost us six dollars each and we both think it was well worth it.

So our advice to all girls who want their ears pierced, is to get parental approval and have it done by a doctor.

Sincerely,
Deborah and Daphne Via

Dear Editor:

I have just received a ticket for turning left off Virginia Beach Blvd. at Princess Anne Plaza to get to a discount house there. I admit I was wrong. There were "no left turn" signs posted, but I didn't see them until I had already started my turn.

But I think the City of Virginia Beach is wrong in not having a left turn lane there. There's a left turn lane going toward Norfolk. Why not going toward the Beach?

The only alternative is to remember to turn off the Boulevard early at Malibu, a rather difficult feat during rush hours. There's certainly enough turn traffic to warrant a turn light. I'm sure many people are caught completely unaware by the signs and must either find somewhere to turn around or just change their plans.

Sincerely,
Mrs. M. F. Bone

Sorry, Spurrilows

Dear Editor:

I am writing in reference to the news item, under the heading of "Spurrilows to Play at Dance Saturday" that appeared in the January 12 edition of the Virginia Beach Sun.

It is true that the Spurrilows were to appear at the Dome on that date, but it is for the purpose of a Sacred Concert and not a dance. The Spurrilows do not play for dances and Youth for Christ has not nor does not now sponsor dances of any kind.

In a job as hectic as getting out a newspaper on a deadline, and involving as many people as a news item must involve, I am sure that a misprint of that kind could easily appear. I only hope that the item has not done some irreparable damage.

Youth for Christ is an interdenominational, evangelical ministry that works with the local church and seeks to challenge young people with the message of Jesus Christ.

Thank you for the promise to print this retraction of the article.

Roy Alphin in Washington Today for Safety Meet

A Virginia Beach man who is "deeply concerned" over traffic fatalities in Washington today doing something about them.

J. Roy Alphin, president of Alphin Motors, Inc., is one of 17 men picked by President Johnson to serve on the National Motor Vehicle Safety Advisory Council and advise the government on automotive safety standards.

The first meeting of the Council—many of whose members are prominent in medicine, labor and transportation—is set for today at 9:30 a.m.

It was set up under last year's auto safety legislation and will help Auto Safety Chief William Haddon in formulating auto safety regulations.

Alphin, selected from the nation's 30,000 car dealers, will serve on the Council until December 30, 1967.

One of the things the Council may have to wrestle with is the "lead" time for automotive manufacturers to comply with safety standards. Presently, all 1968 cars must meet 23 standards. Some car makers say they can comply with only 16.

Alphin's appointment came about possibly as a result of a letter he wrote last fall to Haddon, expressing his concern for the slaughter on the highways and offering to help.

His qualifications were impressive.

Born in Auburn, N.C., he grew up in the Indian River section of Norfolk County and went to work at the Ford Assembly plant in Norfolk in 1925.

He became head of the Dealer Claims Section and in 1941 he went into defense work in Panama in the Automotive Transportation Department. In 1942 he was commissioned in the Navy and served until 1946 when he became assistant director of Motor Vehicles for the Fifth Naval District.

Later, he returned to the Ford Motor Company and was assigned to the district staff of the Mercury dealership.

Alphin is also a member of the Automobile Dealers Traffic Safety Council, a group dedicated to promoting traffic safety.

"I've been very much concerned about traffic safety for years," he said. "A lot of people read about one person killed here or there. It doesn't impress them much. But when you add them up, 50,000 persons were killed in the U.S. last year. And many thousands more are maimed.

"Even right here in our state, over 1,000 people were killed last year."

Alphin said he didn't think the safety standards set up by the government are the complete answer. "The big problem is still the driver," he mentioned driver education in the schools as a way to make drivers more competent.

"It should be compulsory rather than volunteer. I think it should be a real part of the education system, rather than a side line."

Alphin is also a member of the Virginia Beach Planning Commission. He and his wife, the former Frances Rogers, of Pittsburgh live at 103 Bay Drive. They have a son, John, a senior at the University of Virginia.

MRS. BONNIE PAIGE TRIMS CHARLES W. LANEY'S HAIR UNDER THE DIRECTION OF WILSON I. TRADER, MRS. PAIGE IS LEARNING TO BARBER.

Students at Barber College Learn Centuries-Old Trade

By R. ADAM KATALA
Students enrolled at the Oceana Barber College learn a trade and skill that dates back many centuries.

To become proficient in any trade takes time, study and determination. This is what it takes to become a barber. It is no simple task. Each Oceana student must have 1000 hours of instruction before going to Richmond to take the State Board examination which will entitle him to practice with a license.

The Oceana Barber College, located at 1737 Virginia Beach Blvd., has been in operation since May 1966. According to Mr. Wilson I. Trayer, manager and instructor at Oceana "Our school trains the barbers-to-be in all phases of haircutting, shaving, shampooing, scalp treatments, facials, the theory and complete study of Barber Science." In short the student learns everything from the history of barbering to barber shop management, included in the course are 16 examinations which each student must pass before graduation.

Like many other institutions of learning, Oceana has schedules to fit the students and their time requirements. Two classes are available, the eight hour a day and the four hours at night. For example, a student who works at another job may devote four hours at night and eight on Saturday until he reaches his 1000 hours. Several servicemen stationed in the area attend classes in this manner. Many local area residents, including women, attend Oceana during the day.

Barbering at Oceana is taken seriously. It costs each student $295.00 for 1000 hours of instruction. This includes tools and text books. While attending classes they earn no money. So it's not something taken lightly.

Oceana is the only Barber School in Virginia Beach. Its hours of operation Monday through Friday are 1 to 10 p.m. and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

31ST STREET

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

As the world continues to grow smaller, the glitter of a Safari tends to diminish. The aura of sophistication that formerly surrounded the tent set up in the jungle appears to me now about as sophisticated as a campsite in Sesoshe State Park.

No longer do I thrill to the oral travails of the traveler returned from the bush: I yawnless listening to my child relate her adventures at the Lafayette Park Zoo.

I'm wrong, I know. African excursions are, unquestionably, great spine-tingling experiences . . . every bit as gripping as an excursion on Virginia Beach Boulevard. I'm sure the hunters come in from a day's outing shaken enough to welcome the Scotch before the soap. (So do the Boulevard commuters, too, I think.)

But before you misunderstand, let me emphasize that I greatly respect and admire the safari set . . . not for their animal stories but rather for the imagination that leads them there.

It proves that they (1) have either been everywhere and done everything so that only the wilds remain, or (2) they thrill more to the outdoors and the kick of a rifle than to the Lido and the kick of the chorus line.

Simply stated, my problem is one of envy: pure, green-eyed, feminine envy.

The whole idea of a safari so intrigues me that each new issue of the Abercrombie and Fitch catalogue is immediately dog-eared to the hunting boots and safari suits page - just in case.

To further egg me on, I have in front of me a day-to-day diary of 30 days in the bush country . . . kept by Richard C. Goodman of Princess Anne Hills who took his bride there in September, 1965. The Goodmans' compilation of events instantly renewed my faith in the safari as I think of it: not as a dilly bus ride from a plush Nairobi hotel into a zoo-like animal land, but as an adventure into a land of mystery and excitement, where the only sounds are those of the prowling animals and the only conversation that of a hand-picked party of native guides and cooks.

A private plane flew the Goodmans into the interior where a landing strip had to be prepared for the plane to land. There they stayed, isolated, and loving every minute of it.

The native tailor-made clothes they'd ordered before they left the States were ready when they arrived. Accompanying the Goodmans were a professional hunter (mustachioed and English), a group of natives to skin each day's catch, an excellent cook to prepare the freshly killed game.

Delightful touches of civilization they managed to retain: drinks before dinner (occasionally champagne), dinner in front of an open fire.

These excerpts I share with you:

CAPT. STRONG BOOZAR UNPACKS A COMBAT RATIONS KIT FOR MEMBERS OF THE TIDEWATER VIRGINIA FOODSERVICE EXECUTIVES ASSOCIATION IN THE WARDROOM OF THE USS DODGE COUNTY.

Mm...m...mmm.....

Good Things From Olive Drab Cans

If homemakers think they have a corner on the convenience foods market they haven't broken bread with the armed forces lately.

A sampling of the large stockpile of delicacies contrived to please the palates of men in uniform would reassure wives and mothers that while Johnnie no doubt misses her home-style cooking, his Uncle Sam is doing a pretty good job as substitute. Just how thorough is the job the government is doing feeding the service man was explained to area food men Monday night by Supply Corps Capt. Strong Boozar, USN.

It was a show and tell program aboard the USS Dodge County, an LST at sea more than in port, but presently tied up at the Naval Amphibious Base at Little Creek.

The program was masterminded by Capt. Boozar for members of the Tidewater Virginia Food Service Executives Association, primarily to show the food men how the manafloat -- and ashore -- is fed. It also gave guests the opportunity to compare notes on mass feeding with convenience foods. All agreed that quantity notwithstanding the professional cook's taste-test remains infallible; that even the man in the field, by mix-matching the contents of his ration kit, can concoct a tasty meal -- in-a-dish. All it takes, said Capt. Boozar, is a dash of imagination.

The menu for the guests consisted entirely of combat rations: olive drab cans of main dishes, bread, salad and deserts, with fill-ins of jams, jellies and peanut butter. It was a heat (or chill) and serve party with the ship's skipper, Lt. Billy L. Price, at the head of the table, the LST Division Commander, Comdr. E. H. Beumer, USN, doing the honors at the far end of the table.

Said Comdr. Beumer: "The menu provided tonight was prepared entirely from combat rations (those normally provided for troops in the field, C-rations) and from dehydrated or ration dense items. The manner in which these items are prepared and served does a great deal in making this food more appealing to the consumer.

"What we are trying to do in establishing menus and guidelines for dressing up the Combat Ration is to show the ships in the Atlantic Amphibious Force how these rations can best be utilized. The ships in LST Division 41 have on board a mandatory allowance of the rations as reserve for emergency support for the embarked troops. Regulations require that at least one third of these rations be utilized each year for the crew if not used in support of troops."

Capt. Boozar, elaborating on the Navy's feeding program, explained the government's continuing progress and research of food and food preparation. He discussed new processing methods, products and equipment, among them new bread-making machinery now being tested at Guantanamo, Cuba; methods of making dehydrated or dried foods more palatable; a test now underway to make beef steak an edible item in the field ration kit; (he hopes this "will pan out") and updated packing processes to save space and weight.

"Curiously enough," he said, "some plastic-packed products often appear to retain flavors longer."

Tidewater Virginia Food Service Executives Association, a branch of the national organization, is comprised of men involved in processing, distributing or serving food. Merlin F. Foote is area president.

Benefit Auction Scheduled

Cavalier Garden Club has scheduled its benefit auction for March 15 in the Cavalier Hotel ballroom. The sale will get underway at 11 a.m.

Mrs. E. F. Donnelly, chairman, has announced that attendance this year will be limited to club members and their guests.

Proceeds from the auction, an annual project of the Cavalier Garden Club, will go to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. Last year's proceeds amounted to some $600, bringing up to $2,000 the total amount realized from the club's four previous sales.

Among the articles to be auctioned this year will be several pieces of antique silver, china, glassware and furniture. Donations to the sale will be appreciated, and will be picked up by members of the committee.

Area Clubs

Mrs. Malcolm H. Todd Jr. was hostess to members of the Tidewater District Council of Accredited Flower Show Judges last week at a meeting in her Chesapeake Colony Home. Eighteen attended from Norfolk, Williamsburg, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Frank J. Lukanich, president of the group, announced three new master judges: Mrs. Dewey C. Heath, Mrs. Robert L. Munn and Mrs. David Stormont.

The program was presented by Charles Hayes of Cavalier Nursery. Hayes discussed plants, their cultural habits and their uses in landscaping. He showed some 50 specimens.

Navy Wives Clubs of America Davis-Elis #241 recently held open house in the new clubroom at the Naval Amphibious Base. Club sponsor Mrs. John Salop officiated at the ribbon-cutting ceremony. Monthly meetings are held at 7:30 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesdays. All wives of enlisted men of Navy, Marine and Coast Guard are invited.

Lake Smith Garden Club held their January meeting in the home of Mrs. W. L. Jones at Briarcliff Point. Mrs. Richard Dumajo, well known clubwoman, demonstrated the use of the Madonna in arrangements.

"Your yard can be a window box over the kitchen sink, or greenery on the window sills if you make it a focal point of beauty," said nurseryman Charles E. Gifford. Using colored slides to illustrate his talk, Gifford showed members of the Liskhorn Park Garden Club methods of beautifying yards, lawns, patios and terraces. His reference to window box plantings was directed to the high-rise dwellers. Gifford was introduced by Mrs. J. James Davis, first vice president, at the group's recent January meeting.

paid-trip to Los Angeles for a crack at the big money Bake-Off contest.

The surprised cook, who lives in Windsor Woods, said that when she entered it she didn't expect it to fare quite so well. "After all," she said, "I'd never won anything before so why start now? I'd entered the usual grocery store things that most women do but this was the first recipe contest I ever entered."

And she got in right under the wire. "I entered it last October, just before the '67 contest closed." She was notified last week that she was a winner.

children. Mr. Babb, a chief, is an instructor at Guided Missile School at Dam Neck.

Though the cookie already has paid off, the prize money won't stay long in the cookie jar.

Safari (Continued from 7)

air strip one and one-half hours later. Exhausted, Imbibed, Dinner: wild goose. Went to sleep to tune of lion's roar, Bettie very frightened.

SEPT. 3

Reconnoitered area by air. Saw buffalo, sable antelope, many elephants. Next flew to Mpanda for special licenses. Assistant commissioners would not accept dollars but would take American Express checks. All travelers' checks gone now. Very primitive village and very dirty. Dinner: talapia (fish) Almondine a la Cashew.

SEPT. 4

Boys snared a hyena at camp. Departed camp 7 a.m. Saw pilot off. Then safari. Saw impala, wart hog, duiker, elephant (small herd of cows and calves), Southern reed buck, baboons hartebeest (congoese), waterbuck, monkeys, steinbuck, wart hog (shot and hit and tracked for). Very hot. Stuck my head in the river and drank. Lunch: Congoese Curry.

SEPT. 5

Reveille 5:45. Breakfast fresh pineapple; Great! Lions roared all night. Very close! Went to pool. Found spoor elephant bulls. Tracked until 9 a.m. Found one bull. 40 pounds; too small. Lost tracks due to other elephants. Went to pool. Shot hippo. Returned to camp 10 a.m.

3 p.m. went to hippo pool. Hippo afloat. Boarded boat and with other hippos close by, fastened rope around hippo foot and towed to shore. Boys stripped one and one-half inch thick hide off two and one-half ton brute and took hit, front feet, meat and two hind legs (for lion bait). Bettie nauseated. Dinner: spaghetti with meat sauce (congoese).

SEPT. 7

A. M. Visited new area. Three minutes from camp saw three waterbuck. Three minutes later, three more including fairly good buck but didn't shoot as we didn't need meat for bait. Saw large herd of sable. Stalked. While waiting, two zebras came within 50 yards. Did not shoot as we were interested in sable. Sable bucks - one too small - the other had but one horn. Saw Southern reed buck and got a shot at 150 yards. 100 pounds. C. W. H. (the professional hunter) says very good specimen and we'll be eating well as usual. A hard morning though very rough bush. Boys reported for lunch and gin rummy and will go back at 5 p.m. and sit in blind which boys are building.

P. M. Had high tea, all very proper to go after the leopard. Drove to the blind and everyone sang. Boys left and we proceeded to read and wait. At sundown leopard had not appeared so we returned. Roasted impala leg for dinner.

SEPT. 15

Left camp and within one half hour had shot a buffalo. Boys took hind quarters to place where hippo had been shot for more lion bait. Dinner: impala loaf.

SEPT. 20

In the p. m. was quite hot so decided that Bettie and I would walk down the river bed with three boys and see if we could bag a duck and/or partridges. Left at 5 p.m. and Bettie shot, with 22, a beautiful Egyptian goose. The geese were floating down and in a pool where a hippo was and the boys were reluctant to retrieve. R. C. G. stripped down and showed his talents as a Chesapeake Bay Retriever.

SEPT. 30

Left camp at seven with Bettie. At 7:15 shot two zebras, less than 200 yards from car. We had been searching and hunting for a zebra for the last 10 days.... and very intensely as this was one of Bettie's most prized trophies and zebra very scarce in this area. Five minutes later we had a dead zebra.

OCT. 1

With only two targets left, roan and kudu, left camp at daybreak and spent two hours looking for these. Saw other game but not these. So returned shortly, after eight for breakfast, preparation of trophy list, accounts payable, packing, etc. for early p.m. departure. Charter plane arrived too late for p.m. departure so we brushed aside the crocodiles and hippo and went for a swim in the river. Departed next a.m. at 7 and flew four and one-half hours non-stop to Nairobi. Passed Mt. Kilimanjaro and other beautiful scenery but a long flight in such a small plane.

A CROUTON OF MANY USES.

Let's Butter Butter Up the Croutons

Tiny squares of corn bread, coated with garlic butter and slowly baked until they are crisp and lightly toasted, then tossed with a crisp green salad, adds a dining-out touch to an otherwise ordinary meal. Especially good with bouillabaisse or tomato soup.

CORN BREAD CROUTONS:

- 1-1/4 cups enriched corn meal
- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 T baking powder
- 1 tsp salt
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 2 T shortening, soft

GARLIC BUTTER:

- 2 medium-sized garlic cloves, crushed
- 1/4 cup butter, melted

For croutons, heat oven to 400 degrees. Sift together corn meal, flour, baking powder and salt. Add eggs, milk and shortening. Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about 1 minute. Do not overbeat. Bake in greased 15 x 10-inch baking pan in preheated oven (400 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes. Cool; cut in 1-inch squares.

For garlic butter, saute garlic in butter over low heat. Add corn bread cubes and toss to coat evenly. Place in 15 x 10-inch baking pan. Bake in preheated oven (300 degrees) about 1 hour, stirring every 10 minutes. Cool. Store croutons in covered jar in refrigerator. Serve with soups, salads, or dips.

- 2 beef bouillon cubes
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 tsp salt
- 1/4 tsp pepper
- 4 cups boiling water
- One 11-oz. can condensed bisque of tomato soup

Add bouillon, onion, salt and pepper to boiling water. Simmer 10 minutes. Add soup; simmer an additional 10 minutes. Serve topped with garlic croutons.

Wrestling Team Takes Two at Bayside H. S.

BY BOB WHITMORE

The past week was a better-than-average one for sports at BHS, as the wrestling team won two more matches and the basketball team took one and dropped another.

Last Wednesday night, the wrestling squad of coach James defeated Oscar Smith, 22-17, at the Tiger gym. After losing the first two weight classes to Smith men, the Marlins bounced back to take the lead and eventually triumph. Winning for Bayside were: Webb Dowdy (112); Steve Gallagher (120) by a pin in 2:50; Wayne Singleton (127); Clay Temple (138); Buck Strickland (154); Bobby Crain (160); and John Bowles (Unlimited), who drew. On Saturday night, the Marlins won a surprising victory over the Great Bridge Wildcats, 27-19, in the Marlins gym. Bayside came up with three pins and won four other classes to get the win. Marlins winning their matches were: Todd Gallagher (103), 4-2; Steve Gallagher (120), a pin in 3:53; Wayne Singleton (127), a pin in 5:01; Terry Melnard (135), 6-0; Clay Temple (138), 16-1; Bob Crain (160), a pin in 3:39; and Allan Maki (Unlimited), 11-7. Bayside is now 3-3 for the season. Tuesday, Bayside goes up against First Colonial at home, and against Maury on January 21, also at home.

In the past week, the BHS basketball team fared almost as well, beating Kellam, 70-55, last Tuesday night, and being defeated by Great Bridge, 70-52 last Friday night. Three players hitting in double figures put Bayside in the lead early, and the Marlins never relinquished it in their triumph over the Kellam Knights. Dick Cherry with 21 points, Bruce Gregory with 16, and Ray Emerson with 16 made the difference. Thirteen points made Alan Clements high for the Knights. While their wrestling counterparts met defeat at the hands of the wrestling Marlins, the Wildcat basketball team pulled ahead of the Marlins at the end of the first period, and went on to win it, 70-52. The Wildcat combination of Tommy Rhoads and Frank Pierce was too much for the Marlins of Jim Spencer, as Rhoads and Pierce made 24 and 18 points respectively to go the distance for Great Bridge. Poochie Williams was high scorer for Bayside with 15 points. The basketball team is now 1-2 in the District and 3-4 overall. Next on the schedule are Churchland on the 17 and Cox on the 20.

Carrow Baptist Plans Men's Day

The spotlight will focus on men when members of Carrow Baptist Church, 5545 Susquehanna Dr., conduct Baptist Men's Day Sunday.

Carrow Baptist Church is one of an estimated 15,000 churches in the Southern Baptist Convention which will recognize their men in a special way on this day. Beginning in 1933, Baptist Men's Day has been held as an annual event in most Baptist churches.

Features of the day's program will be a fellowship, testimonies, a men's chorus and a message by James R. Bousman.

There are two Jaycee Chapters in the city of Virginia Beach. The vast number of projects undertaken by the Virginia Beach Jaycees and the Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees is staggering.

The two biggest events sponsored by the Virginia Beach Jaycees are the Miss Virginia Beach pageant and the Surfing Carnival.

A partial list of their other projects includes the Junior Tennis Tournament, the Police-ment of the Year Award and banquet, the First Citizen presentation, the annual football banquet, a Christmas party for underprivileged children, co-sponsorship with the Chamber of Commerce of Industrial promotion through billboards, sponsorship of a handicapped boy scout troop, presentation of the outstanding young educator award, Buy in Virginia Beach campaign, and a host of others. The Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees have a list equally as long and as ambitious, including the Distinguished Service Award and banquet and the Junior Miss Contest.

Other major projects include the L. Curtis Hall Memorial Trophy presented each year to the outstanding scholastic athlete in Virginia Beach, the Teenage road-E-O, the Boat-E-O, the school bus Road-E-O, Soap Box Derby, Trant Memorial Ballpark, a boy scout troop of explorers, and a large number of other projects.

The Virginia Beach Jaycees have 120 members and the Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees have about 30.

"Because we are a smaller chapter, we find that projects concerning youth can take most of our time and energy," said Frank Adkins, president of the Princess Anne-Bayside group. "We make community surveys to find out just what our city needs and what the residents want."

Sponsorship of the boy scout troop and the Trant Memorial Ballpark are the outgrowth of the community surveys.

Don Fentress is president of the Virginia Beach Jaycees. He is enthusiastic about the growth of the surfing carnival.

"Proceeds from the 1966 carnival are being used to erect a nice sign on First Colonial road for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach," he said.

The two presidents and the two chapters are busy this week celebrating Jaycee Week with several activities.

Leadership training for young men through community service is the avowed purpose of the Jaycees, according to both presidents.

"It's nice to have a sense of accomplishment," said Adkins. "But we get a lot of satisfaction out of helping others and the community."

"Our city is still growing and maturing," said Fentress. People are becoming more and more interested in what is good for our city. And we have a good time promoting Virginia time promoting the city."

Both Fentress and Adkins have embarrassing moments in their terms in office.

Adkins and the emcee stood on stage for 15 minutes and ad libbed while the vote was compiled and the audience was waiting for the announcement of the winner of the Junior Miss contest.

"That was the longest 15 minutes of my life," laughed Adkins. Fentress was escorting Miss America to the stage in the Miss Virginia Beach contest. He told her about one of the younger men who would be helping with the show.

When Miss America saw the man, she dropped Fentress' arm, and exclaimed, "Why didn't you let him escort me?" Fentress would not reveal the name of his competitor of that evening, since the man in question has recently married.

Both Fentress and Adkins speak enthusiastically about Virginia Beach and obviously enjoy the hard work it takes to make the Jaycees successful.

Local Coed Makes VPI Dean's List

Ruth A. Oliver of Virginia Beach is one of 18 women enrolled in the College of Home Economics at Virginia Tech who made the dean's list during the fall quarter.

According to Dr. Laura J. Harper, dean, those on the list had a 3.4 average or better. Miss Oliver is a freshman in general home economics.

1st Colonial Visits Oscar Smith

BY FRED FARLEY

The First Colonial basketball team travels to Oscar Smith Friday night, Jan. 20, hoping to tag its second conference win.

The Tigers have two stars on the court by the names of Steve Tise and Clark Wiseman. Both have been scoring at a better than average clip while on a "not so hot" team. Together they totaled 41 points against a strong Princess Anne team.

Since the Christmas break the Patriots cagers have gone 1-3 overall and 1-2 in the conference. On Jan. 3, the Colonials played Cox and lost a heart-breaker by a score of 52 to 51. With F. C. down nine points with less than four minutes to play, Cox, fearing a comeback, switched to its "slow-down" game. This caused the Patriots to foul Cox's players in order to get the ball. Although they lost by only one point, after a thrilling Patriot comeback, it was those foul shots that won the game for the Falcons.

On Jan. 13, First Colonial traveled to Deep Creek and edged the Hornets 41 to 35 for the Patriots' first conference victory. After leading at the half by five, the Colonials seemed to have lead sneakers on in the 3rd period as the Hornets tied the game at 39 all while holding F. C. to three points. The Patriots soon overcame their sluggishness and overpowered the Hornets to raise their season's mark to two wins and five losses.

There is a good chance First Colonial will start Clinton Graves and John Grimstead tomorrow night against the Tigers. These two boys are the smallest on the team, at five feet, six inches and five feet, eight inches respectively, but are also the fastest.

The game plan for the Colonials will be to try to gain the lead by use of the fast break and then switch to slow-down tactics against the taller Tigers. First Colonial will have to hit on a high percentage of its shots from the floor, for Niel Hill, the Patriots' six foot three center, will not tear many rebounds away from Oscar Smith's Clark Wiseman.

Bus Drivers All of Age

Virginia Beach has no school bus drivers under the age of 18, according to Millard Strickler, assistant superintendent of school.

The State Attorney General's office in Richmond is looking carefully at the wording of new amendments to the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act, which becomes effective Feb. 1.

State education officials expressed fears that the act may prohibit the use of students under 18 years of age as bus drivers. According to them, Virginia has more than 1,000 student bus drivers under 18. Child labor standards in the act rule out the use of these students.

"We only have three student drivers, and they are all 18," Strickler said. "I feel sorry for the rural areas, though in Virginia and North Carolina."

Letters To Cahill

In your column, you mentioned getting stuck at Second Class when you were a Scout. It isn't surprising.

Very truly yours,
E. D. Cummings

TO THE Editor

Read your editorial about our Boy Scouts selling donuts door to door. I think you are being very unfair to our scouts. Let me tell you I've lived in this area for 24 years and I yet have had a scout knock on my door selling donuts. I've had other organizations do it. If a Boy Scout did, I would buy them cause I know what the profits would mean to the scout, camping equipment such as cooking kits, utensils, sleeping bags, tents, patrol boxes, axes, shovels, lanterns etc. (list too numerous to write down). Alright you say the individual scout buys this equipment, true he buys some, but when they go camping it's mostly done on a patrol basis which the troop furnishes most of the equipment (A patrol generally consist of eight boys). Have you bought a large cook kit lately? You say where does their dues go, well it pays for Boy's Life, insurance on each scout, oil for your heater in your cabin, camp craft, signal flags, advancement awards, merit badges, and then there are times the troop buys the food for a camping trip. The dues are usually 10¢ or 15¢ a week so you see that money doesn't go very far.

As for camping in our fast-growing city, it is getting hard to find camping areas for our boys to camp. Twenty-four years ago you could find a camping place most anywhere, today those places are housing developments, yet I've never heard of one camping in the yard of their troop meeting place. PAVAB district led all of Tidewater Council in number of boys in summer camping (at Pipsico) and our record in short team camping (weekend) is outstanding. Therefore, I feel that your paper and Mr. Cahill in particular owes every scout and scouter in our district and I'm sure our council an apology for the editorial in your paper.

A Scouter's Wife,
Alma R. Cooke

Nickname Stuck With White

JUDGE WHITE

"My mother is the only one who calls me by my name," claims P. B. White, new associate judge of the Municipal Court.

"I've been called P. B. ever since elementary school," he said. "Pressley Burns was too hard for the other children to say. Once you get a nickname it sticks."

White said his son is also called P. B. and has an office in the same building in Norfolk as he does. "Our mail is always getting mixed up."

A native of Norfolk, White has lived at the Beach for more than 30 years. "I guess I should have opened an office here, but I hate to change now." The ideal time was when I moved here, but that was during World War II when I was holding down the office while my partners were in the service."

White attended Norfolk public school and graduated from Grant's Law School (no longer in existence) in Norfolk. "I think it was 1935," he said. "I can remember when I graduated from high school, but not law school."

He was sworn in as associate municipal judge Dec. 30, and began holding court at the Dome last week.

"Every lawyer wants to be a judge," said White about his new post.

Snow Fails to Slow Dedication; Boulevard and New Bridge Open

It was a cold and windy day, especially to be standing in one place in the wide open spaces. The snow covered the ground and there was little sun to melt the scattered patches of ice.

Thus the ceremonies marking the official opening of two important road projects in Virginia Beach were cut short. The significance was not lost to the weather, however.

A surprisingly large number of state and local dignitaries, as well as well-wishers, were on hand at the Virginia Beach borough end of General Booth Boulevard at the entrance to Camp Pendleton for the ceremony there.

State Senator William P. Kellam introduced Lt. Governor Fred Pollard and General Paul M. Booth, Virginia Adjutant General, for whom the road was named.

Roger Scott, assistant to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, provided the official scissors. General Booth cut the official red ribbon and the road was officially open.

The General's daughter, Miss Louisa Ann Booth, unveiled a large road plaque in the median strip of the road recognizing the outstanding deeds of her father.

The entire party then went in official motorcade to Shore Drive and the Lynnhavenborough side of the new span of the Lesner Bridge over Lynnhaven Inlet.

"The ceremony should have been held on the Bayside borough side," quipped Bayside Councilman Larry Marshall. Lynnhaven councilman Dewey Simmons laughed but did not agree.

Senator Kellam introduced the dignitaries all over again, this time including Mrs. L. E. Quackenbush, president of the Ocean Park Woman's Club, which sponsored the dedication and a later luncheon.

Remarks were again brief in deference to the weather. Roger Scott again produced the official scissors, and this time Lt. Governor Fred G. Pollard cut the official ribbon. The bridge, which has been open to traffic since December 1, was then officially opened and dedicated.

General Booth Boulevard, which now extends from Camp Pendleton to Barnes Corner will eventually be extended to Nimmo Church, there meeting another network of circumferential highways. The present link was built at a cost of about $2 million.

The twin span of Lesner Bridge spans the 1,527 foot inlet, and was built at a cost of nearly $3 million.

At the luncheon sponsored by the Ocean Park Woman's Club at the Black Angus after the two dedications, Lt. Governor Pollard was the principal speaker.

He noted how happy he was to help dedicate a non-toll facility in this area where there are so many toll roads, bridges and tunnels.

The Lt. Governor predicted a relaxation of the old "pay-as-you-go" road and bridge building policy of the state.

Pollard noted that Virginia has excellent credit, and that is about time "we take advantage of it".

With a sound policy of indebtedness, he added, the toll facilities in Tidewater can be made a toll-free much faster.

Other dignitaries, including former Virginia Governor Albert S. Harrison and First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing were unable to attend because of the snowy weather.

Future Looks Hopeful for Canal

Within 30 days, a report is expected to reach Virginia Beach City Council that could pave the way for continued dredging in a canal from Back Bay to Rudee Inlet.

The work was stopped last May after the city, the Dredge Commission and the Soil Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture had plunged about two-and-a-half miles northward from Back Bay.

At that time the work was stalled mostly because of problems concerning security. The canal passes on private property adjacent to the Navy's Dam Neck facility. Construction of a new bridge and relocation of access also figured in the stoppage.

Council authorized a complete survey to be made, it is that study that is expected to be released soon.

Hopefully, according to reliable sources, the work will begin anew in the very near future.

Colonel Aubrey N. Holmes supervisor of Soil Conservation Operations and who has worked closely with the dredging operations for several years recently wrote City Manager W. Russell Hatchett, apprising him of exactly what has been done in the project so far.

The U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, in a 1949 study, said that drainage and heavy flooding was a major problem at that time and recommended the dredging of a drainage canal. The report said flooding was costing landowners about $150,000 annually.

A large number of farmers had already dug drainage ditches and some had built a canal with this gate was projected but never was dug because of differences of opinion of federal and state agencies on how it would affect Back Bay salinity.

Finally in 1960, flooding in the Sandbridge Road area was so bad that a small canal was finally built from North Bay to Sandbridge Road.

But it was not until 1965 that the City dredge moved into North Bay and began clearing a drainage canal 25 feet wide and eight feet deep.

"At first the work went slowly," said Holmes. "We had a lot of problems to deal with, especially disposal."

But the landowners were most cooperative, according to Holmes, and the problems were overcome one by one.

"Just before we hit the bottom," he said, "we were moving as much as 200 feet a day."

The dredging work stalled about three-quarters of a mile south of Lake Tecumseh, but land problems and disposal problems were already settled through the lake (which also has to be dredged) and northward to Redwing Lake.

From there northward to Owl Creek and to Rudee Inlet, a definite route is not set, but Holmes could see no major problems in dredging the canal as soon as the go ahead is given.

There's about seven miles to go before the dredging job is complete, but barring construction of tide and salinity gates, the work could be finished in a few months.

Holmes says he believes the work will not be needed, especially now.

(SEE CANAL P. 6)

THIS IS THE ROUTE THE CANAL WILL PROBABLY TAKE. SOLID LINES SHOW DREDGING THAT HAS BEEN COMPLETED. THE BROKEN LINES SHOW THE PROJECTED ROUTE.

Snowbreaking?

"This is another first for Virginia Beach," said City Manager W. Russell Hatchett. "I think this is the first ground-breaking ever in this city with snow on the ground."

The "snowbreaking" was occasioned Saturday with the official beginning of construction on a medical and dental office building complex on First Colonial Road. The site is directly across from the new General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Construction of the $350,000 building is expected to be finished this summer.

Dave Miller Realty is handling the rental of the professional suites of the one-story building to be built in two sections.

"The doctors will be able to work with the architects in designing their own suites now," said Harry Evans, one of the agents handling the rentals.

At the groundbreaking ceremonies were the owners of the building, Richard and Murray Walters; representatives of the architects, Brundage, Cohen and Kroskin; representatives of the contractor, M & S Construction Company; representatives of Southern Bank, which is financing the project, representatives of Dave Miller Realty; and City Councilmen Dewey Simmons and Murray Malbon, as well as Hatchett.

The ceremony, which marked the start of the Professional Building was brief because of the snow, mud and icy temperatures.

Marina Runs Into Problem

A decision on an application by Lacy Redd for a use permit to develop a $250,000 marina near Little Creek was postponed at City Council meeting Monday until the next Council meeting for further study.

The Navy is concerned that 100 or more boats as the marina would house might create a traffic problem with Navy ships in the restricted channel of Little Creek.

(SEE MARINA, P. 6)

Celebrities Due For Jamboree

Paul Christman, NBC-TV sportscasting great, Hank Leonard, well-known night club and TV comedian, Keith Morris, of SPORTS ILLUSTRATED and Lt. Walter J. Marm, recent Medal of Honor winner are only a few of the celebrities who will be on hand for the 15th annual Virginia Beach Sports Club Jamboree.

The jamboree, which is considered one of the outstanding annual events of Virginia Beach and Tidewater, will be held Monday, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Bow Creek Country Club.

Christman will be the principal speaker of the evening and Leonard will serve as master of ceremonies.

The Outstanding High School Football Player of the year Award will be presented to Ray Allen Emerson of Bayside High School. Emerson is a junior halfback who was named all-Metro and all-Tidewater last fall.

The president of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Dr. T. Marshall Hahn, will present the award for the Outstanding College Football Player of the year to Frank Loria, all-American halfback from VPI.

The Outstanding Tidewater Athlete Award goes to Charlie Carr, graduate of Princess Anne High School and now a student of the University of North Carolina.

The award to Carr was presented by First Lt. Marm, who was awarded the Medal of Honor in November of last year for outstanding heroism in Viet Nam. Marm is one of only three persons so far to have been awarded the nation's highest military honor for action in the limited war in Vietnam.

The award, considered to be the highlight of the evening, of the Sportsman of the Year trophy will be made by former winner J. Fletcher Bryant of Virginia Beach.

J. Gordon Cavanaugh, president of the Virginia Beach Sports Club, also said most of the coaches of large and small colleges in Virginia will attend the banquet, as well as high school coaches from Virginia Beach.

A capacity crowd of about 350 is expected. Tickets are on sale at the main office of First & Merchants National Bank on Pacific Avenue, the Virginia Beach borough office of Virginia National Bank and from any member of the Virginia Beach Sports Club.

Future Bright: Pollard

Despite Virginia's progress and tradition, her "greatest era may very well lie in the years immediately ahead," said Lt. Gov. Fred G. Pollard Friday night to members of the city's Fraternal Order of Police.

"1966," he said, "was the year in which we not only took advantage of the future but importantly, we recognized the challenge of change and wisely set in motion the machinery to take advantage of the future and to shape it to our benefit."

(SEE POLLARD, P. 6)

Bond Interest Rate Pleases Officials

"I don't know any other bond issue that sold at a better interest rate than that," stated City Manager Russell Hatchett as bids for the city's four million dollar bond issue were announced.

The best of six bids was by Phelps-Fenn, New York investment bankers, for 3.43217 net interest cost.

It was pointed out at the special city council meeting last week that Richmond several weeks ago sold their city bond issue at a rate 20 higher. "And they're a triple A city," commented Hatchett in regard to their credit rating.

In addition, Larry Wales of Wheat & Co., Inc., who handled the sale for the city, said that the closing interest on bonds on the New York Stock Exchange the previous Friday was 3.52.

Wales attributed the low interest to the fact that the assessed valuation of property is "climbing dramatically," and the bond was arranged to fit the market.

The bond issue approved by voters in November was for a total of $7 million. Only enough bonds were sold to provide money for projects immediately needed so as to avoid having to pay interest on the full amount.

The money will be used for public school projects, $1.5 million; municipal buildings, $1.2 million; highway improvements, $1 million; and parks and recreation development, $300,000.

Non-Joiner Wins DSA

"I was a real non-joiner until the Jaycees came along with their inspiration and training," said Andre Evans.

"I hope that my efforts have in some small way contributed to the welfare of our community."

Evans was presented the Distinguished Service Award by the Princess Anne-Bayside chapter of the Jaycees at a banquet at Bow Creek Country Club attended by about 60 persons.

The winner is a member of the Virginia Beach chapter of the Jaycees. Six past winners of the award from the smaller club have come from the ranks of the larger club, members of Princess Anne-Bayside chapter are not eligible.

Evans was honored for his outstanding work with the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center the Boy Scouts, the United Fund and a host of other civic and service organizations and projects.

In his acceptance speech, the 34-year old lawyer paid tribute to his wife whom he said "had to stay home alone" while he was out working on all his many endeavors.

Frank Adkins, president of the Princess Anne-Bayside Jaycees, also presented awards of recognition to the judges of the DSA award, Dewey Simmons, Jefferson Davis and the Rev. Clayton Crigger.

Additional awards were given to the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN, radio station WVAH and the Virginia Beach BEACON.

Evans will now be entered in the Virginia DSA competition sponsored by the Jaycees.

End of School Fees?

One of the major complaints of new residents is the public school fees.

These may be eliminated on the elementary school level by next fall, School Superintendent Frank Cox told members of the Council of Civic Organizations at their meeting at a Bow Creek Country Club recently.

"The School Board feels and will recommend that cost of supplementary materials (fees) be eliminated next year," Cox said. "Whether the board or the city can go further remains to be seen."

He said that supplying the materials would cost the city an estimated $130,000. Free text books would cost $260,000, which the school system cannot afford at this time.

He also pointed out that the city provides transportation for children at a cost of about three quarters of a million dollars a year.

"With one or two exceptions schools in Virginia that provide text books don't provide transportation," he said.

Cox also said that Virginia Beach "can't go into the kindergarten system overnight. It took 25 years to build the 12-year school system. However, I'm not saying it will take 25 years to establish kindergartens."

He said that the two biggest problems are lack of physical plants (150 additional classrooms will be needed) and qualified teachers.

There is danger of lasting harm to five, six and seven year olds from unqualified teachers, Cox states. "We're just kidding ourselves by going into a kindergarten program before we're ready for it."

He proposed an alternate plan by which vacant classrooms would be used for a seven to nine week period and kindergarten children taught by primary teachers "until teachers can be trained."

Another change in the future will be the addition of remedial reading classes, possibly in 1968.

The CCQ, during its business meeting, announced plans to sponsor another public forum in May for all candidates running for political office representing Virginia Beach.

Boating Classes To Begin in Feb.

Boating classes will be offered without charge by the Coast Guard beginning with registration at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 14 at the Coast Guard Auxiliary Building on Great Neck Road at the intersection with Lynnhaven Road.

Qualified instructors will teach safe boating, navigation and safe conduct on the water. There will be eight classes.

According to a Coast Guard spokesman, "The more people know about boating the more they will enjoy it and the less trouble they will cause on the water."

Organist, Baritone In Concert Here Sunday Afternoon

The second in this winter's series of Candlelight Concerts will be held in Gallies Episcopal Church at 5 p.m. Sunday. This concert will feature organist Ronald W. Davis and baritone Charles Oliver.

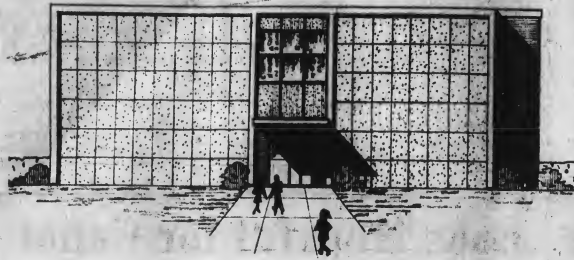

Davis is organist and choir-master at Trinity Methodist Church, Petersburg, and director of the Petersburg-Hopewell Choral Society. He recently returned from a tour of England and the Continent where he played many cathedral and historical church organs.

Oliver is music director at Gallies Church and director of the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus. His career includes tours with many national touring groups, including the Robert Shaw Chorus and the Karlshof Chorus, in addition to numerous stage and television concerts in New York.

The concert is free - one of a series open to the public to enable the community to hear performances by local musical groups and musicians.

PLANS FOR ADDITIONS TO KELLAM AND BAYSIDE HIGH SCHOOLS.

Alan Clements Voted "Ugliest"

Alan Clements now reigns as the ugliest boy at Kellam High School.

He was selected by student body popular vote in the Annual Ugly Boy Contest. He was sponsored by the JV cheerleaders.

Although it is called an "ugly" boy contest, it is actually quite an honor to be selected as one of the candidates from the various clubs and organizations at Kellam. The contest is all in fun and the contestants and student body look forward to the event each year. Even the president of the senior class, Reggie Lewis, was nominated as a candidate this year.

The contest is jointly sponsored by the Y-Teens and Epsilon Tri-Hi-Y as their only fund raising project of the year. Both are service clubs and use the money raised for worthy causes. Recently they aided needy families at Christmas and at Halloween "Trick-or-Treat" for UNICEF.

After the nominations were completed, the students of Kellam selected the ugly boy by paying a penny per vote for their favorite candidate.

The other contestants were Reggie Lewis, Tommy Loftus, John Cooney, Steve Thompson, Rosco Thompson, Mike Furell, Rick Compton, Larry Haynes, Richard Jefferys, Mike Mulkey, David Pace, Bobby Eiban, Rocky Freeman and Danny Noyd.

A Review

"Strange Bedfellows" Below Par

It's been said many times that politics makes strange bedfellows by Florence Eversen and Colin Clemens, now on display at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse in Norfolk is merely about politics. It doesn't play them.

The production, directed and designed by new director, Marshall Stredler, is badly done, and certainly not near the professional standards we have come to expect from this dinner-theatre.

No one thing makes it bad. It is a combination of many things including the choice of play. This dated comedy about an ex-senator's family, who suddenly become involved in the women's suffrage movement at the turn of the century in San Francisco, is such a collection of bombastic alliteration today that the average theatre-goer is appalled.

Perhaps if it were done more in the style of farce, it would be more palatable, but whatever style it is, is not.

The set was fair and workable, even though terribly colorful for the Victorian period and awfully two-dimensional.

The costumes were in too many cases bulky and appeared not to fit well in an unfinished sort of way. Lighting was held to a bare general minimum, remaining at the same intensity in the night scenes as well as in the day scenes.

The direction was uninspired and the entire production moved unevenly through the slow pace of the play. The actors had difficulty with a number of lines on opening night.

Some of the characterizations were not too badly drawn by some members of the cast, but speech problems and poor diction ruined it for the good ones.

Only two cast members stood out, and they did so head and shoulders above all others, and in spite of the others.

John Martin, as the Senator's matter-of-fact English son-in-law, was most pleasant to watch and listen to. His characterization was entirely consistent and amusing.

Virginia Anton, as the old Senator's wife, presented a heartwarming characterization of the sweet old gal who remembered well her meager beginnings.

Susette Ollinger, as the stuffy anti-suffragette almost had it, but fell short of the mark by just a little, probably through lack of direction.

Surely Jerry Brandon was directed to play the Japanese houseboy, Ling, that way, but his characterization was entirely laughable when it wasn't supposed to be. He looked and acted like all houseboys in the "B" movies on the late, late show.

No doubt some of the problem can be attributed to a new director, a new company, a very short rehearsal time, opening night jitters and a multitude of other excuses, but it must be remembered that theatre-goers are paying their good money to go to Cavalier Dinner Playhouse to see a professional production, not a bad one even by strictly amateur standards.

Incidentally the food is delicious, and worth the price of admission. The play is not

Six Came Bidding

Six bidders vied for the right to buy $4 million worth of municipal bonds offered by the City of Virginia Beach. The low rate of interest at which the city was able to sell the bond issue is an achievement which should be recognized by all of our citizens.

The interest rate obtained is 3.43 per cent, below that of Richmond's 3.5548 per cent in December and far below that of New York City just one day later.

City officials are rightfully proud of the interest rate obtained. Virginia Beach has an excellent credit rating and has an unparalleled record of fine handling of revenue in fiscal matters.

In the short time of existence of the new City of Virginia Beach, great strides have been taken to provide all city services quickly, as well as merely keeping up with the building of necessary schools and other facilities needed because of the mushrooming growth.

This the city has been able to do well, at low cost to the individual taxpayers and never exceeding the limits of propriety where bonds and credit are concerned. Other cities in the Tidewater area are not eligible for this praise.

Last year, City Manager W. Russell Hatchett announced that Virginia Beach had received a new credit rating from major financial rating services, that of "A". This jump in rating is obviously the outgrowth of sound fiscal operation and the dedication of our city fathers.

The low interest rate and the large number of bidders are merely the icing on the cake.

It is also the way of the purchasers have of saying that the progressive city of Virginia Beach is being run well by responsible men.

We agree with those financial wizards.

General Booth Boulevard

The simple metal highway plaque, not unlike those historical signs a driver in Virginia is used to seeing every day, stands in the median strip of a new road in Virginia Beach just outside the main gate of Camp Pendleton.

The sign will be passed every day by thousands of motorists using General Booth Boulevard as an express route from Virginia Beach through to Dam Neck, to Sandbridge, to City Hall and even to Kempville. Probably few will ever stop to read the sign or to consider its significance. Fewer still will ever realize the tremendous efforts of the man for who the road is named.

He is a friend of Virginia Beach and of many of our citizens. He helped secure the right of way from the state through Camp Pendleton, home of his National Guard for the road. But that is not his only claim to fame in Virginia Beach, to which the highway plaque mutely testifies. It reads:

"As a permanent recognition of the tireless efforts and guidance rendered the citizens of this nation, the Commonwealth of Virginia and the City of Virginia Beach, especially during the Ash Wednesday storm on March 7, 1962, this boulevard is dedicated to Major General Paul Milton Booth, Adjutant General Commonwealth of Virginia."

Those who remember the heroic deeds of the General and his men in the wake of the terrible Ash Wednesday Storm and their efforts to bring Virginia Beach back to normal in those trying days will understand the thanks we owe him. Those who do not remember should thank him too for his help after the storm. He helped it continue to be the great city we all live in now.

Not only because of that short period, but also because of his warm personal regard for our city do we always welcome his visit each summer at Camp Pendleton with the Guard.

For all these and many reasons we take pride in having the new road called General Booth Boulevard.

Vote Recorders

The city of Virginia Beach is moving ahead toward solving a very knotty problem. Hopefully most precincts will have voting machines the next time the voters go to the polls.

Plans are progressing, however slowly, to have some type of machine in 22 more precincts of the city. The two precincts in Virginia Beach Borough already have them, and the two smallest precincts would hardly need a mechanical counter.

The cost of the better known lever-type voting machines is not inexpensive. The instant vote counting type of machine costs about $1,800, but the city was nearly ready to go ahead with the purchase when a new type of machine came into the picture.

The punch-card voting recorder is a small unit and costs only $180. This could represent a considerable saving to the city. But there are two drawbacks.

The punch cards would have to be run through the city's computer. After the close of the voting day and the results would be slower than the lever type of machine.

The big drawback is that no one is absolutely certain that type of voting recorder is allowed by state law. Seems the laws are specific but vague on that question.

The voting recorders seem to fit nicely in the scheme of progress of Virginia Beach, as well as into the bulging budget.

We suggest that the voting recorders would be the best answer to Virginia Beach and cheaper too. And as much as we would like to see them in use in the July primary, if they do not meet state law requirements, it would be better to wait until the law can be changed.

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

Why do people want to run for public office in the first place? That's a question that has been asked many times. It's bound to be a rhetorical question, because there is actually no simple or uncomplicated answer to it.

On the contrary, it is a question that has a multiplicity of answers.

Political Potpourri

Some enter the political arena for prestige. Some have a burning desire to serve. Others toss their hats in the ring because they love to be right in the thick of things. Still others, a small percentage, find a way to personal gain through politics.

Politicians, office seekers and office holders usually tell of the personal rewards and satisfaction they feel through service to others. But most of them also tell of the miseries that go along with it.

Candidates and civil servants are watched every moment. Two types are watching—those who look up to them and those who look down on them and whose luck love to catch them doing something wrong or even embarrassing.

They have critics and they have supporters. Maybe it just seems that way, but the critics of the "ins" always seem to outnumber the supporters, that is until election day. Then the "ins" are often rushed back into office, simply because the voters have heard the names so many times.

Politicians spend a lot of their own money creating a good image, and far more campaigning, either successfully or unsuccessfully.

Financial compensation in public office, while appearing sometimes to be large to the average man, is usually not at all excessive for the job to be done.

Although there may be some who will forever disagree, public officials have difficult jobs and deserve what they receive and perhaps even more.

Nine candidates have announced their intentions of running for the five Constitutional offices up for grabs this year in Virginia Beach. They will stand for election in the Democratic primary in July, then in the general election in November. The winners will be paid while they are in office.

Their salaries vary. The Clerk of Circuit Court is the highest paid. He receives a maximum of $19,100 entirely from the state depending upon the amount of fees his office takes in. He could receive less if fees fall short of expectations. His office including his staff, is entirely run on these fees, free from any city compensation. He receives an additional $4,000 from the city because he does much of the city's recording work, but two-thirds of that amount is reimbursed by the state. He receives no compensation for being Clerk of City Council.

Half of the salaries of the Commissioner of Revenue, Treasurer and Commonwealth's Attorney are paid by the State, the other half by the city.

The Commonwealth's Attorney draws a total of $14,750, while the Treasurer and the Commissioner of Revenue draw $14,250. The Treasurer is also allotted $250 extra by the city for his city work, but this amount reportedly has not been drawn so far. The City Sergeant receives a total of $11,700.

Nine people so far want those salaries. The other reasons they filed their candidacies are entirely up to them, but whoever wins the five important offices, that's what they will be paid.

LIKE FRANKENSTEIN -- ALL BODY, NO HEART

Lake Joy$e

Norfolk City Council did what it had to do about Lake Joyce, we suppose. But what a shame that the purchase of Lake Joyce had to become such a big mess.

Virginia Beach could have saved $24,005, on the deal had not one man interfered. No doubt his intervention in the original $1,000 deal between the two cities was honorable and his intentions were good, but the waters of Lake Joyce certainly were muddled by his offer of $25,000.

The obvious reason the city of Virginia Beach wished to purchase the lake from the city of Norfolk in the first place was to guarantee lakeside residents in the Baylake Pines area access to the water and to keep the small amount of land surrounding it from being developed by private interests.

Norfolk no longer needed the lake as part of its water system and it does lie completely and irrevocably within the city limits of Virginia Beach. Where water is concerned Virginia Beach and Norfolk have been known to have problems, but in this case, cooperation was quite good.

The price tag was agreed upon, before lawyer Pugh got in the act and made a far larger offer. His objection to the sale to Virginia Beach was apparently the same reason Virginia Beach was trying to buy it to keep the island and land around the lake from being developed by private interests.

Obviously now that the land and lake has been sold to Virginia Beach for recreational purposes, it is open to all and access is guaranteed. What more could the gentleman want?

Already we taxpayers have had to fork over more money than we planned to spend on the lake. The additional money had to come from city funds, and city funds come from the taxpayers.

But at least it is all over and settled to the satisfaction of the great majority of the people, lawyer Pugh notwithstanding. And Lake Joyce is back where it rightly belongs - in Virginia Beach.

So What's the Job Pay?

Sun Spots

BY JOSEPH LOWENTHAL, JR.

I've got to admit it. One thing we have here is an efficient office staff. Rarely does a telephone call reach my ears that I can't cope with, but when it happens they are real doozies.

Our switchboard operators do a magnificent job of fielding questions and complaints that come by the dozens via Mr. Bell's wonderful invention.

They quickly transfer the call to the proper staffer, (that's newspaperese for flunky) or handle the problem themselves (that's newspaperese for accidentally disconnecting the party).

But once in a great while a call will come in for which there is no staffer. Two such happened within the past week. One of them was immediately transferred to me. When the other came in I was mercifully out to lunch, but still had the whole mess dumped in my lap when I got back.

The first one was from a most sincere and conscientious woman who informed me quite bluntly, "Your paper smelled bad this week."

Immediately I went on the defensive, as all good newspapers people do, and invoked the name of William Randolph Hearst and Joseph Pulitzer, the hope I could make her understand the great traditions that we stand for.

She let me go on like that for at least five minutes, then told me that she was not referring to the editorial or news copy therein contained, but that the odor of the thing was just plain awful.

With Apologies To Mr. Bell

She said it smelled like a very strong disinfectant, but her main worry was whether it was safe for her children to read it.

I assured her that this is a family newspaper, even if it does smell like a very strong disinfectant.

I also assured her that I would attempt to track down the culprit and return the paper the following week to its sweet-smelling self, all soft and fluffy and safe for children.

All the papers did not smell bad. It was only a select few, in fact. The woman who called just happened to be one of the lucky ones.

Someone put a stack of papers down on the top of an unclean aerosol can containing a harmless, but pungent, plastic fixative, used to cover wet ink on copy so we don't smear it.

Now think about it that way, ma'am. You were a member of a select group that week. Not everybody had a plastic-fixed paper.

The call that I missed was from another woman with an unusual problem. She begins to sneeze everytime she picks up our paper, she says. Now she doesn't sneeze when she reads the local daily papers, and therein lies the problem.

This dilemma was dropped on me. I am still conducting an investigation, but so far my sleuthing has turned up no tipped over sneezing powder in the composing room.

Obviously, allergy would seem to be the answer. We do use different ink and paper from the dailies, but then I also know someone who breaks out in hives every time he picks up one of the dailies. His problem could be psychological, however.

Really, I am sorry she sneezes, and I'm working on it. Until the lab gets me a full report, the only feasible suggestion I have is a surgical mask while reading our paper.

The office staff will take care of any problems you have - well, most of them. But if your problem is out of the ordinary, don't even bother telling the pleasant voice that answers.

Just ask for me.

Salinity has obviously helped growth in Back Bay and that North Carolina is interested in adding salt water for the same purpose.

Hatchett said, "It would certainly be a less expensive way of adding salt water without pumping."

The Council also authorized payment of $26,005 for the purchase of Lake Joyce and Lake Bradford from the general fund with repayment to come later from Bayside Borough.

An appropriation of $3,000 was voted as the Beach's half of the cost of the tourist information center at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel on the condition that Norfolk matches the sum. A state information center will be completed in about a year.

The Council voted to set the cost of motorcycle licenses at $3.

City land at 29th and Arctic was transferred to the Hampton Roads Sanitation District for a pumping station.

At the request of residents of the Sherry Park area, a trip-type stoplight will be installed at Indian River Road and Sandra Lane.

In other zoning matters the Council approved the rezoning of land at Lynnhaven Road near Holland Road for a service station.

An application by Thomas E. Druitt to build a car wash on the south side of Shore drive west of Allegheny was denied.

The Council passed a rezoning of Haygood and Ferry Plantation Road in front of Haygood Methodist Church and on the property of Stanley Oliver to limited commercial if the church and Oliver will agree to dedication of right of way for road widening.

Oliver refused on the grounds that he "feels I've already given too much land for roads." The congregation of Haygood Church voted to refuse also.

An application for a sign for apartments at Birdneck Road and Laskin Road was denied.

Applications for billboards at Kellam and Virginia Beach Blvd., Broad and Kellam and Independence Blvd. and Virginia Beach Blvd. were approved.

An extension of a use permit of the Free Will Baptist Church on Grayson Road was approved.

Approval was given for renewal of a use permit for 120 apartments and a service station to be built on Witchduck Road near Chinese Corner.

"It definitely will be navigable," said Hatchett. "Of course, a few bridges would have to be raised, first though."

A new bridge over Rudee Inlet is being built high enough to permit boat traffic. Providing for another possible future canal, bridges on the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway are also high enough to permit small boat traffic.

Holmes has a file folder about four inches thick on the entire project and says he feels the canal will be finished and will aid all the drainage and conservation problems in that area.

Holmes' office is primarily interested in conservation and a way to stop flooding of farms, but says that his department is now engaged in working with municipalities and farmers in any way possible to make land and water areas more useable for recreation through conservation.

Hatchett also looks to the eventual completion of the canal not only from the standpoint of conservation but also from the standpoint of recreation.

The completion of the canal will be another step in making Rudee Inlet a major boat stop-over point and a boating lane to the Intercoastal Waterway.

Indian income is dropping.

Pollard, guest speaker at the FOP's annual banquet, reviewed for members, their wives and friends, the progress made during the past year.

He credited Governor Mills Godwin's Program for Progress with much of the year's economic surge "that enabled us to enter 1967 as the second fastest growing state east of the Mississippi, with the highest family income among any of the southeastern states, and that includes Texas."

Continuing, he said that "one of the top news stories of 1966 was the action of the 1966 General Assembly in passing the Governor's program -- almost to the letter. I hope, in the days ahead, the people of Virginia will accord members of that body proper recognition for the fine job they did."

Of education one of two areas (the other being highways) which received greatest attention in 1966 Pollard said, "We improved in national ranking from 38th to 25th among the states in expenditures per child. For the first time, we were listed in the upper half among the states."

Emphasizing that while quality of education cannot be measured solely in terms of money spent, there is, nonetheless, a direct relationship "between the economic level of a community and the amount of money it spends on education." Also, if "we are to obtain and retain qualified teachers, then our salaries must be competitive with those paid in other states and other areas."

Of highways: "We have now passed the halfway mark in our 1,050-mile inter-state System; we have completed 545 miles on our 1,700-mile arterial network. When they are both completed, every community of 5,000 or more people will be connected by a four-lane divided highway."

The dinner-meeting was held in the Black Angus Restaurant here. Present also, in addition to the Fraternal Order of Police Association, were members of the Fraternal Order of Police Associates and Fraternal Order of Police Auxiliary.

She's a DSA Wife

BY JEANNE MAGEE TUCKER
Women's Editor

Andre Evans' wife, Nell, is a tall, dark-haired young woman who wears longish strands of beads, plays bridge and sails... when the weather's calm. She also likes to be where things are happening, and right now much is happening around Andre.

Young Evans is the Bayside-Princess Anne Jaycees' man of the hour, having just received their Distinguished Service Award for his far flung activities with civic groups here. It means he's now the man to watch in a state-wide competition in February.

And watching with a sharp-shooter's eye will be Nell... who's anything but a stick-in-the-mud herself.

Her list of activities ranges from church work to bridge clubs, and is almost as lengthy as Andre's. Nonetheless, if it's Ladies Night at the Lodge, Nell's the first to arrive.

"Andre's club work is certainly much more interesting to me if I know what's going on.... and if I can go along with him, I sure do.

"If I can't.... well, I just curl up with a book and stay home.

"He's gone several nights a week, but so am I. Most of my meetings with girls my own age take place at night because of our small children.

"My women's club (the Princess Anne Junior Women) and King's Daughter Circle (Harbor) both meet at night.

"When Andre was president of the Jaycees, you can imagine how much time he had to devote to it. Anyone who's ever been married to a Jaycee president knows what it entails.

"But I would far rather have a husband who is interested in these things than one who is not."

Nell's an ex-social worker, which sort of qualifies her for the women's club committee on children and youth. She's also a Sunday School teacher at First Presbyterian Church.

Combined, their activities take up most of their week nights. Weekends are free, so the Evans generally plan a social fling at least one of the weekend nights. In the summertime they sail.

Nell and Andre grew up together: she was the girl next door. Their mothers' scrapbooks and photo albums, beginning with Andre's second birthday party, include much of both of them.

They never really went steady.... and it wasn't until they'd flown their Ahiskie coops that they decided to marry.

Nell came to Norfolk as a social worker; Andre was finding up a tour in the Army when they decided to eliminate the walk between yards.

Now, in addition to each other, they have two children, a sturdy, sea-worth sailboat that "will sleep four very friendly people" and a handsome plaque from the Bayside-Princess Anne Jaycees.

Secretly, the plaque didn't come as a great, roaring surprise to Nell.

"After all, when your husband is gone five or six nights a week, you sort of expect that some day this might happen."

Barky Snatches Top Dog Title

Whoever said, "Every dog has his day" may have had Barky McKnight in mind. Barky, a fat, shaggy, close-to-the-ground hound of indeterminate parentage recently won two dog shows.

That the shows were held in his mistress' yard had nothing to do with the results, said the judge, an incorruptible neighbor (who has since flown to Mexico).

However, there have been threats of insurrection in suburban Bay Colony (Barky's home) and a neighborhood committee has been formed to investigate the awards.

Quilting: Cosy Project for Icy Weather

OLD-FASHIONED STITCHERY FOR THE CONTEMPORARY ROOM: THE STYLIZED DESIGN IN BOLD YELLOW, THE BACKGROUND ROYAL BLUE.

For a needlework project that offers ample opportunity for creating original designs, try your hand at Hawaiian-style quilting.

Hawaiian quilting is truly an American art, according to the National Cotton Council. When American missionary wives introduced patchwork quilting to Hawaii in the late 19th century, the islanders were quick to devise their own style and distinctive designs.

Lacking a supply of multi-colored scraps, they used new cloth . . . making their quilts out of a single piece of fabric, and decorating them with appliques cut from another cloth. Most Hawaiian quilts have only two colors - both of them bright, bold shades. A favorite combination is red and yellow, the royal colors.

For their applique designs, Hawaiian women borrowed motifs from nature - transforming flowers and fruits into stylized eight-point figures. And when it came to quilting, they usually followed the contours of the applique instead of stitching along diagonal lines.

To make a Hawaiian-quilted pillow, create your own applique design by experimenting with paper cut-outs. The principle is the same as cutting out paper dollies or lacy valentines.

Take a square piece of paper - slightly smaller than the dimensions of your pillow - and fold it in half, then into quarters. Now make a diagonal fold, forming a triangle with the free edges of the paper meeting on one side.

Place the folded triangle with the long side towards you and the free edges on the left. Starting near the left corner of the long side, draw or cut a design toward the right corner (which will be the center of your design). Continue cutting up toward the top of the triangle. Unfold the paper and you'll have an eight-pointed motif.

Use this as a pattern for your fabric applique. When you cut the fabric, allow one-eighth of an inch all around the applique for tucking in raw edges. Choose firmly-woven cottons like percale or broadcloth for applique and background fabrics. Turn under raw edges and applique the design to contrasting background cloth with a regular hemming stitch or a blind stitch.

To quilt the pillow top, place a layer of cotton batting behind the applique square and back it with a lining fabric. Baste batting and fabric layers together. For quilting rows, use a mercerized cotton thread the same color as the applique. Stitch around the Applique - following the shape of the design - making quilting rows about one-fourth inch apart. Quilting stitches can be done by hand or machine.

Three high school girls were honored recently by the Princess Anne County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution with "Good Citizenship" pins.

Mrs. Clarence J. Smith Jr., good citizens chairman, said the girls were selected on the basis of dependability, leadership and patriotism.

They were Doris Gale Fauber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Fauber, First Colonial; Marcia Frances Bartusiak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Czeslaw A. Bartusiak, Frank Cox High; and Laura Anne Costner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Costner Sr., Kellam High. The girls were recommended by the faculties of their schools.

Guest speaker for the program was Major Maury Boykin whose subject was "The American Indian." He traced the five periods of Indian history and closed with a reading of Longfellow's poem "Hiawatha."

Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. C. D. Maxey Jr., with Mrs. C. D. Maxey Sr. and Mrs. J. Fletcher Bryant as co-hostesses.

Educator Discusses New Trends

Dr. Robert Kelly, director of elementary education in Virginia Beach schools, told a group of teachers recently that step-up in the in-service program here will offer teachers, especially those who trained some 10 or 15 years ago, the opportunity of keeping up with modern teaching methods. Offered especially, he feels, should be courses in the new math, reading, science, the visual aids and art. In-service training, now being given Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, will be expanded he hopes, to include more subjects with more schools participating. At present, Kelly said, 75 percent of the school budget goes for instruction.

Speaking to members of Alpha Delta Kappa, honorary teachers sorority which met in the home of Mrs. William C. Reynolds in Birchwood Gardens, Kelly discussed new trends in elementary education.

If it all began when 10-year-olds Joanne McKnight and Sandy Ricks spent the night together and sat up late making ribbons and training their dogs.

The next day they made an exhibition ring, built a press box and sent out applications to all Bay Colony "thoroughbreds".

There was only one dog fight, only one boy went home crying and entrepreneurs, Joanne and Sandy and their dogs considered it a highly successful event. (Sandy's dog won second prize.)

Pass the Puffies, Please

Here's a recipe with advantages for the cook as well as the family. It's a do-and-freeze ahead--so simple that she can delegate the making to the moppets. To make 16 servings:

POPLAR PUFFIES

- 5 cups puffed rice
- 1/4 cups butter or margarine
- 3 cups miniature marshmallows
- 2 T natural flavored instant malted milk
- 1 T instant coffee powder
- One 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1 quart vanilla ice cream, slightly softened

Heat puffed rice in a shallow baking pan in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 10 minutes. Pour into well-greased large bowl. Heat butter, marshmallows, malted milk and coffee powder in saucepan over low heat, stir occasionally until smooth. Pour over puffed rice; stir until evenly coated. Press into a well-greased 13 x 9-inch baking pan.

Melt chocolate pieces over hot (not boiling) water. Spread over puffed rice mixture. Chill. Spread ice cream over chocolate. Freeze until firm, about 4 hours. Cut into bars. Serve immediately.

25-Year Veteran Named for Honor

The recent selection of Master Chief Gunner's Mate Delbert D. Black as the first Senior Enlisted Advisor of the Navy has commenced the biggest year in the history of Dam Neck. This June Dam Neck will celebrate its Silver Anniversary as a naval installation.

Chief Black was one of eleven finalists out of hundreds of applications received by Rear Admiral D. D. Nace who headed the board which made the selection. Chief Black's naval service spans 25 years which started aboard the battleship USS MARYLAND. He is one of the few remaining naval personnel who witnessed the tragedy at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941. In addition to holding 28 medals and decorations, he has been commended many times for his performance of duty, including a Secretary of the Navy Commendation.

Chief and Mrs. Black have been cited on numerous occasions for their civic activities in the United States and abroad.

Since reporting to the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center, Chief Black has been the Chief Master-At-Arms.

Captain William N. Homer, Commanding Officer of the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center and Fleet Computer Programming Center, Atlantic stated that this was a splendid manner in which to commence the year that the 25th anniversary of Dam Neck will be celebrated.

Officially commissioned in the spring of 1942, FAATWTRACEN and FCPC but also of the Guided Missile School; Drone Anti-Submarine Helicopter Training Unit, Atlantic; Fleet Composite Squadron Six Detachment Dam Neck; Missile Weapons Systems Training Unit and a Marine Corps Detachment which is in charge of the Atlantic Fleet's Rifle and Pistol Ranges located at Dam Neck.

The celebration date of Dam Neck's Silver Anniversary as well as the schedule of festivities will be announced at a later date.

World Day of Prayer Services Announced

The Council of Church Women will sponsor World Day of Prayer services at 11 a.m. Feb. 10 at Virginia Beach Methodist Church on 17th St. between Atlantic and Pacific.

Mrs. Sidney Crane, wife of the pastor of Thalia Presbyterian Church, will speak on "Their Faith Is Throughout the World."

The World Day of Prayer, observed each year on the first Friday in Lent, is sponsored by the National Council of Churches.

It has a history dating from 1887.

It is truly world-wide in character. Basically the same service is used by groups in approximately 127 countries and territories of the world. It has traditionally brought people together across denominational, racial, national and cultural boundaries to pray for the needs of the world and to make an offering for carrying out the Church's mission around the world.

No Building, No Salaries

For John Fentress, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Virginia Beach, the first few weeks of January have not been too good financially.

Fentress' salary depends on how busy his office is. The Circuit Court is the court of record for Virginia Beach. It records all deeds, wills, law and chancery transactions, criminal records, financial statements and the like.

The State pays the majority of Fentress' salary, which of course, has a ceiling. The running of the Clerk's office and the salaries of all the secretaries and assistants that Fentress has are paid out of the fees collected for recording the transactions. Fentress' salary then can fluctuate depending upon the number of transactions. So can the size of his staff.

The tight money situation has now hit Fentress. Building permits began to decrease last spring. Fentress is now feeling the results.

"Recording the deed to a house is usually about eight or nine months after the permit is issued," he said. "So now the number of deeds we are recording has dropped off sharply."

Fentress does not see any relief for many months to come for his office.

"During the first two weeks of January I had enough fee money to pay the salaries to my staff," he said. "But I couldn't have drawn anything even if I had wanted. There wasn't anything left."

Most people look forward to the day when the tight money situation eases and construction begins again. All except Fentress, that is. He looks forward to eight or nine months later.

Civic League Protests

The First Colonial Civic League presented a petition containing 131 names to the Virginia Beach Planning Commission objecting to the rezoning of a place of property on First Colonial Road.

Zoning of the property, now the residence of Dean S. Potter Jr. of 996 First Colonial Rd., would be changed from Residence Suburban District 2 to Multiple Residence District in order to operate a doctors' office there.

Members of the civic league expressed the fear that the property might be converted to an apartment complex.

Spokesmen for the property assured them that it would be used for a medical office only, and that one tenant, Dr. Romulus May, had already been secured.

The civic league pointed out that one other piece of land had been rezoned multiple residence for a nursing home and then apartment units were constructed.

Dr. May's office said that no construction was planned on the property and that the house would be converted into offices for two or maybe three physicians.

In other action, the Planning Commission heard the request of the Lake Wright Golf Course for a Use Permit to operate a golf course and driving range on the north side of Northampton Blvd. at the city limits.

Reeves Johnson, director of public safety, said he had no objection to the course if the lighting hazard to motorists is eliminated and a shield erected to keep golf balls off the roadway.

Many Inquiries Directed To Health Info Center

The Greater Hampton Roads Health Information Center has received 4,309 inquiries since it opened on Oct. 1, 1965.

These inquiries from the residents of the eight city - six county Tidewater area have ranged from routine information to complex statistical data.

Some of the inquiries received, in order of their frequency are: (1) addresses and telephone numbers of health service resources, (2) loan closet items, (3) referral to physicians (these are referred to the appropriate medical societies), (4) where to secure a health permit (5) housing and sanitation complaints, (6) nursing education, (7) low cost medical care and, (8) facilities providing psychiatric care.

The general public has been the most frequent user of the Center and 99 percent of their inquiries have been concerned with information on actual health services while 11 percent were requests for information on programs to assist with payment for medical care.

The Center has information on 703 health service programs which, contrary to popular opinion, are constantly changing. There are few days that pass at the center without a change in data relative to the programs.

All of the areas served by the Center, with one exception, have more non-resident than resident health resources. If a person is seeking health services it is important that he has an awareness of the facilities located outside of his city or county that will serve him even though the program may not maintain a local office or contact point. Many of these "out-side" resources are not listed in area telephone directories, substantially reducing the opportunities that local residents have for taking advantage of them.

Local residents can reach the Center by dialing 625-4543.

GOING, GOING, BUT NOT QUITE GONE. OCEANA SCHOOL WILL SOON BE DEMOLISHED TO PROVIDE MORE STORAGE SPACE FOR SCHOOL BUSES.

Old Oceana School To Be Demolished

The Virginia Beach School Board began the new year right with a bang of the gavel to end the meeting in a brief 20 minutes.

On the only matter of real importance the board voted to dismantle the old Oceana School building, which was abandoned about seven years ago.

Frank Cox, school superintendent, described the vacant building as an eyesore and temptation to vandals. He said the land is needed for school bus storage in the summer.

The school gymnasium, connected to the building, would be left standing and the end bricked up. It is presently used as a shop.

Estimate for the demolition and bricking is $13,500. The work is subject to authorization by government authorities from whom the school system has a five year lease on the property.

Veeco Promotes John I. Oatts

Virginia Electric and Power Company today announced the appointment of John I. Oatts of 407 53rd Street as superintendent, power supply operations. The change, which becomes effective Feb. 1, is in the power supply department at Richmond.

After joining the company in 1948, Oatts served as assistant relay supervisor and supervisor, control design, at Richmond, and distribution supervisor at Virginia Beach. Oatts, now district engineer at Norfolk, is a native of Millen, Ga.

Holloman-Brown Plans 2nd Chapel

Holloman-Brown Funeral Home will build another chapel in Virginia Beach. Construction will begin about January 1968, with completion set for the fall of 1968.

Virginia Beach City Council approved a zoning change and issued a use permit for the funeral home to be built on Indian River Road near Military Highway.

The site is between the Indian River Shopping Center and Military Highway, according to Louis R. Jones, president of the funeral home.

Holloman-Brown opened a chapel in Bayside on Independence Boulevard last summer. The Norfolk office at 29th and Granby Streets will also be maintained after the new chapel is opened, according to Jones.

"Total investment in the new building will be about $350,000," said Jones. "It will be similar in design and facilities to the Bayside Chapel."

The new chapel is being designed by George Van Leeuwen of Norfolk.

Joint Action Of Several Groups Blanks Fire Fast

It wasn't a particularly bad fire, as fires go, but the number of people who turned out to fight it and to help avoid a worse fire, was significant.

The first alarm was turned into the Virginia Beach Fire Department shortly before eight in the evening. Chief E. B. Bayne's "regular" manned two trucks and traveled the few blocks to the site in a few moments.

The old three-story frame house, unoccupied during the winter, at 21st and Atlantic was "burning pretty good when we got there," according to one fireman.

A cinder block lean-to attached to the rear of the house identified it as Moon's motel apartments.

Light was the big problem. Someone at the scene called in a "signal 8" which brings the Virginia Beach Borough Volunteer Fire Department into action. Deputy Chief C. B. Owens manned the salvage truck, which is equipped with lights. He parked on Atlantic Avenue, and his men put out bright lights on that side of the burning house.

Members of the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad cranked up their new "crash truck", which had never been used at a fire before, according to "Butch" Clark, who drove it onto the boardwalk and provided bright light on the front of the building.

The crash truck is equipped for any emergency. Besides that unit at ambulance was standing

CLEANING UP OPERATIONS INCLUDED DUMPING A STILL-SMOULDERING MATTER OVER THE RAILING, BEFORE IT CAUSED MORE TROUBLE.

Price Retires After 25 Years

Isaac Price, a civil service worker who began his career in 1941, retired from federal service in a ceremony at Oceana Naval Air Station.

Price's retirement certificate was presented to him by Capt. Albert K. Earnest, the commanding officer of the base.

Price began his career with the Maritime Commission before the beginning of World War II. Shortly thereafter, he was transferred to the Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth. In later years, he also worked at the Naval Supply Center, the Naval Public Works Center, and the Naval Base at Norfolk.

FIREMAN TAKES A COFFEE BREAK WHILE LEANING ON HIS AXE, COFFEE WAS SERVED BY VIRGINIA BEACH VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT AUXILIARY. THE FIRE WAS OUT, BUT MOP-UP WAS STILL GOING ON.

Police and auxiliary police handled traffic. One off-duty policeman rushed from his home out of uniform, but put on a yellow police raincoat and a police hat he borrowed. No one even knew Officer Malesky was not in regular uniform as he held back the crowds that gathered in the cold night to watch.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Virginia Beach Volunteer Fire Department arrived with coffee and doughnuts.

S.W. "PEEWEE" MORSE, VOLUNTEER FIREMAN OF THE YEAR, WAS A HARD WORKER AT THAT FIRE. HIS BROTHER IS ALSO A VOLUNTEER.

Less than two hours after it started, it was over.

No estimate of the damage had been made and the exact cause of the fire was not known. Damage was confined to the downstairs of the house, which was gutted. The second floor was not as badly burned. The third floor suffered mostly smoke and water damage. The roof was slightly burned.

Reportedly the building will be torn down since it is an old building so badly damaged.

Even the Virginia Beach Volunteer Fire Department's Fireman of the Year was there fighting that night. He had just received the honor a few days before. He's Stanford Wade "Pee-wee" Morse, a chief in the Coast Guard stationed at Virginia Beach. He was cited for his outstanding work in the volunteer fire department in 1966 at a banquet recently.

When the fire was out, he was just as wet, cold and tired as everyone else.
